BUT HE'S NO INDIAN FIGHTER

Custer's Back At Little Bighorn

By DAVID N. ROSENTHAL

Associated Press Writer

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —

You've seen the face in history books — cleft chin, droopy moustache, high forehead and shoulder-length hair. Know the name and the resemblance is clear. Robert Lee Custer. Descendant of George Armstrong Custer, the man who lost his life and his reputation at the Little Bighorn.

Today is the 100th anniversary of Custer's Last Stand on the ridges of Montana. His death ended the immediate family line, but R.L. Custer, first cousin four generations removed, says he'll be at the battle site to mark the anniversary. "I think it's appropriate that I be there," he said. "I don't like everything he did, but it's no insult to be a Custer."

Custer, 21, admits it hasn't always been easy being related to an Indian fighter. But it has been interesting. "My liberal friends often lose their composure when they find out," he said. "But I don't apologize."

He says he has come to view the Battle of Little Bighorn as an early lesson in American vulnerability, which must be looked at in the context of the times. "I really believe he died for our sins," Custer says. "He tried to carry out the sentence passed by white America on the Indians. The settlers wanted to expand and Custer was the best man to move the Indians out. But he didn't hate his enemy."

Historian Stephen E. Ambrose, a professor at the University of New Orleans where Custer is a student, supports that theory in a recent book. He says it was overwhelming ambition that got the best of Custer, not a desire to wipe out the Indian race, as others have said.

The blond general's biggest mistake at Little Bighorn, Ambrose writes, may have been pushing his men too hard. He speculates that could have been because Custer wanted a quick victory to influence an upcoming Democratic convention to nominate him for president.

"I can believe that theory," R.L. Custer says. "He was always dabbling in politics. He was ambitious and egotistical enough to want the job."

Custer made his profession into something of pure exhilaration, which not many men can do. But he was thrown against the Indians in the name of progress and he blew it. They say he laughed just before he died. I believe that. He'd played the game and lost — and he knew it."

But he says even in death, George Armstrong Custer and his famed luck may have had the last laugh — at the expense of a then-fledgling New York Life Insurance Co. It seems a New York Life agent based in St. Paul, Minn., had insured Custer and six of his 7th Cavalry officers for $40,000 shortly before they — and about 190 companions — died.

CUSTER'S COUSIN: He has the same long hair, same droopy moustache same cleft chin as his illustrious ancestor. Robert Lee Custer of New Orleans, La., left, first cousin four generations removed from Indian fighter George Armstrong Custer, right, thinks the old boy has had a bad press. Young Custer will be at the site of the Battle of the Little Bighorn today for the battle's 100th anniversary. (AP Wirephoto) years and mailed out vacation checks to workers who have been locked out of the plant since midnight, May 6.

In a letter sent out to the some 1,600 employees idled during stalled labor contract negotiations, division General Manager August Brogno announced payment of vacation pay to eligible workers and summarized negotiations up to this point.

He said in the letter that the company did not issue vacation pay in 1967 (during a 12-week strike) and in 1970 (during a 22-week strike).

Ken Mack, a spokesman for Local 1918 of the International Association of Machinists, said the union would have no comment on the vacation pay until after a meeting today.

Negotiators for the company and the union last met to discuss contract issues on June 18.

Brogno, in that part of his letter referring to vacation pay said:

"As you are probably aware, the company's position in 1967 and 1970 was not to issue vacation pay in the absence of a collective bargaining agreement. We have taken the same position this year. However, it is our feeling that the current absence of a bargaining agreement is due to stall tactics and I.U.D. (Industrial Union Department of AFL-CIO) commitments on the part of your union committee, as well as a confused vote which took place on May 7. It is also

AP Survey Gives Democrat Leader 1,510 Delegates

By EVANS WITT

Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) —

Jimmy Carter has now collected enough committed convention delegates to give him the Democratic presidential nomination, an Associated Press survey shows.

Carter, who never trailed any other contender in his bid for the necessary 1,505 delegates, pushed over the majority barrier Thursday, exactly four months after he won the opening primary in New Hampshire.

With the convention still 17 days away, Carter's total edged up to 1,510, the AP delegate survey found.

The survey counts only delegates who are legally committed or who have publicly declared their preference for one candidate. It does not include any delegate who is leaning toward a candidate, nor does it count delegate votes simply on the statement of a party leader.

Carter's nomination became virtually certain when the primaries ended June 8 and his victory in the Ohio primary boosted his delegate total to 1,125. Democratic leaders and former opponents rushed to endorse him.

George Wallace endorsed Carter June 9, and many of Wallace's delegates followed the Alabama governor's lead, providing nearly a third of the 380 votes Carter needed to go over the majority mark. Another third came from the ranks of the uncommitted delegates.

The 380 delegates were scattered all over the country.

Carter also picked up some support from those who backed Rep. Morris Udall and Sens. Henry Jackson and Frank Church.

Carter, who met Thursday with Democratic congressional leaders in Washington, said he welcomed the AP survey finding.

"I'm glad to hear it," he said. "We've got a very good certainty of a first ballot victory."

Carter called the AP survey "a very conservative count."

"Our confidential delegate count is approaching 1,800," he said.

Carter has delegate support in every state, except North Dakota, where the 13 delegates will be picked today.

From the time he picked up 19 delegates in the New Hampshire's Feb. 24 primary through four months of primaries, state conventions and caucuses, Carter never fell behind any other contender in committed delegates.

By the opening of the convention in New York, Carter is expected to pick up many more delegates from among those released by his untimely opponents and from among the 477 uncommitted delegates.

A spokesman for California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., Carter's only remaining active challenger, said there would be no official reaction to the results. Brown admitted last week that Carter has the nomination "in hand" barring any unforeseen events, the spokesman said.

Brown has 303 delegates, while Arizona congressman Morris Udall, who has given up seeking delegates, has 311.

Jackson, who has endorsed Carter and released his delegates, still has the allegiance of 194 delegates. Church, who also has released his supporters, is still the choice of 60 delegates.

Non-candidate Sen. Hubert Humphrey has the support of 72 delegates.

The largest pool of non-Carter delegates is the 477 who say they have no preference at this time.

South Haven Wakes Up Without Taxicab Service

By TOM KENNER

South Haven Correspondent

SOUTH HAVEN — The South Haven area is without cab service today after the operator of the area's present taxi service stopped operating without notice.

City Manager Howard McDougall confirmed that the city's only licensed taxi company, Bill's Taxi, isn't operating.

McDougall said he has not been able to locate the owner William Walantyn to find out why.

The service has come under frequent criticism in recent months by citizens and members of the city council. Complaints ranged from the slowness of service to the condition of equipment.

The company's office on Huron street in South Haven has been stripped of its furnishings and McDougall reported that Walantyn's insurance had expired.

City councilmen last Monday told McDougall to seek other persons who might be interested in operating a taxi in the city. By ordinance, the city regulates the operation and number of cabs.

Earlier this year the city council rejected a request by a South Haven man to be licensed in competition against Walantyn. At the time the aldermen said they didn't believe there was enough business for more than one taxi company.

DESERTED: This building of cab firm in South Haven stands empty following unannounced departure of firm's owner. Furnishings were gone from office area at right. Firm, operated by William Walantyn, was city's only cab company. (Tom Renner photo)

PROMISES COURT ACTION

Zollar's Hot Over Bond Bill

By STEVE McQUOWN

Staff Writer

State Sen. Charles Zollar, R-Benton Harbor, has promised to take to the state Supreme court a bill approved by the Senate in Lansing yesterday which would allow selling bonds to finance construction projects for the state.

In a telephone statement from Lansing to this newspaper before the Senate's 20-8 approval of SB 556, Zollar said the bill evades the state's constitution which prohibits the state from spending more than revenues allow and mandates that borrowing must be approved by referendum.

Zollar said the bill, if approved by the House, would allow special interest groups to push for construction projects that "are really not necessary."

His stand puts him at odds with Gov. William Milliken who has been pressing for three years to shift construction costs from the general fund.

Zollar told the Associated Press he "takes pride" in the fact he has been partly responsible for holding up progress on the bill. "I've seen the big rolling which has taken place on capital expenditures in this state," he said. "You've burdened your children and their children and their children."

Zollar said the approach will result in overspending, with lobbyists for state institutions and colleges lining up for their pet projects.

The bill authorizes the sale of up to $400 million worth of bonds to cover the major part of Michigan's building program for the next few years.

The bill, added on the Senate floor, can be raised in the years ahead.

The bill now goes to the House.

But some lawmakers continued to protest the debt-incurring method, and said the new approach will lead to overspending and the political horse-trading of building projects.

The legislature would have to approve every building project by roll call vote.

Under the scheme, the state Building Authority — established in 1964 but never utilized — would undertake construction projects through the sale of bonds. The state would lease the buildings from the authority to pay off the bonds over 20 years.

Each year a bill would be passed outlining new construction projects. The authority then would propose leases for these projects and the legislature and state Administrative Board would approve the leases.

Some construction projects would be continued to be funded the traditional way, with appropriations of general fund money, according to budget officials.

Another lawmaker had harsh words for the new concept.

"The state has prided itself in not placing its citizens in debt," said Sen. Robert VanderLaan, R-Kentwood. "This marks a direct change in that policy."

America's Most Debated Anniversary

In the summer of 1876 as any American who could afford the trip was preparing to visit the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition, the news came over the wires from Helena, Montana, that on June 25th a combination of Sioux and Cheyenne warriors led by Chief Crazy Horse had annihilated Lt. Col. George Armstrong Custer's command upstream on the Little Big Horn river.

Lost with Michigan's most illustrious contribution to the Union cause in the Civil War were over 260 officers, men and civilian guides.

It was the most complete defeat ever dealt to the American military and in the context of an entire force being wiped out still stands as a record.

The engagement became a legend overnight. It is estimated the disaster inspired over a thousand paintings and engravings of the battle, most of them totally implausible. Some military historians feel Little Big Horn has spawned more writing than any other single engagement. Waterloo and Gettysburg, included.

Strengthening the legend is the absolute lack of first hand accounts of what happened. The story is a reconstruction of terrain maps, theorizing by Custer's military contemporaries and conflicting reminiscences from some of the Indians involved in his crushing defeat.

It is known that Custer led out the 7th Cavalry made up from 11 troops of about 55 men each from the last navigable point on the Yellowstone river westerly toward the Little Big Horn. Accompanying the regiment was an ammunition train, a few Gatling guns, the first machine gun, and a few civilian scouts.

Within approach distance of the battlefield, the scouts detected sizeable numbers of what the army then called hostiles.

Seemingly impressed with the possibility of rounding up what was assumed to be the entire strength of the Indians, Custer split his forces.

He pressed forward with five troops, Major Marcus A. Reno took three troops on a circling mission, and Frederick W. Benteen, the regiment's senior captain, maneuvered the other three troops similar to Reno.

As the distance widened between the three units, one Indian column screened off Reno while the main element pounced upon Custer. Benteen was so far removed from the primary theatre as to be ineffectual in a supportive manner.

The declination of Custer's command probably required half an hour at best. Reno's group sustained about 30 casualties. He and Benteen who took no losses reached the battlesite once the Indians had departed.

The Little Big Horn's post mortem was voluminous, bitter and long lasting.

Custer was a favorite among the public and a darling of the Democratic press which was tuning up for a Presidential campaign to choose a successor to Ulysses S. Grant.

He was somewhat less adored within the Army. Reno and Benteen secretly detested him. He was in disfavor with Sherman and Sheridan, the Army's first and second in command, for his public criticism of frauds being perpetrated by the Bureau of Indian Affairs upon their wards and the public treasury.

At the heart of the controversy was this concluding sentence to a brief written order given Custer by his command, General Terry, three days prior to setting out on the mission:

"He (the Brigadier General Commanding) will, however, indicate to you his own views of what your action should be, and he desires that you should conform to them unless you shall see sufficient reason for departing from them."

Shortly thereafter, Terry outlined to Custer what he felt to be the best means to corraling the Indians and returning them to their reservations.

Col. John Gibbons was coming from the northwest with a column equal to Custer's.

Terry envisioned Gibbons and Custer as executing an encircling movement.

No one at this conference held a clear idea of the Indian strength nor its precise location.

Equally unknown or possibly discounted was the fact that many Indians, through ill-fitted white traders, had acquired repeating rifles. Their fire power greatly exceeded that of the Cavalry troopers who carried single shot carbines.

Consequently Custer and Gibbons as well marched off, comparatively underarmed, vastly outnumbered and in the dark as to the enemy's location.

As events came to pass, the Indians had as complete a check on Custer's movements as he was unaware of their presence; and the 1,800 hostiles mentioned at the Yellowstone conference developed into something between three to five thousand.

These facts, Terry's discretionary order and the political atmosphere of the times raised endless debate as to whether in splitting his force Custer disobeyed the order or reacted to the very emergency implicit in Terry's writing.

Custer's friends raised such a hue and cry that Reno cowardly declined to come to his commander's rescue that the the major prevailed on the Army to appoint a Court of Inquiry in his conduct. The Court, meeting at Chicago in 1879, absolved Reno of any blame.

Yet a year later the Army cashiered him as a detriment to the service growing out of charges of personal misconduct.

However the Little Big Horn might compromise Custer's generalship, the Army did learn a few things from the mystery shrouded contest.

It updated its weaponry.

Future battle orders were penned in more explicit language.

The intelligence function was upgraded.

Political alliances were discarded.

For all those improvements, one bureaucratic penchant hung on unchanged. This is the sequestration of records from public view.

The Army's law branch, the Judge Advocate General, did not disclose the 1879 Court of Inquiry records until 1941 when it turned them over to the National Archives.

Apparently the JAG felt that after 62 years a documentary on a nonstrategic battle no longer threatened the national security.

Mayor Says Watervliet Rail Crossings Deplorable

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following letter from Watervliet Mayor Arvid Frazier, to C.E. Magoon, railroad safety section acting manager of the state highway and transportation department, was written in response to a letter received by Frazier from Magoon regarding the recent 10-car rail derailment in downtown Watervliet. A copy of Frazier's reply letter was forwarded to this newspaper for publication.

Dear Mr. Magoon:

We take exception to the statement that the crossings are in good condition. The actual condition of the crossings at Pleasant street, First street, Main street (M-140) and Lewis street are in a deplorable state.

The people of Watervliet are fed up with the abuse given them by the Railroad. We have just had a train derailment at the Main street crossing. Thank God, no one was injured. This has made everyone aware of the sorry conditions that exist here concerning the railroad.

I, like all others, know the problems associated with repair of the rails, but I can not see running trains on defective rails or using defective equipment causing near death conditions to the people.

We are sending telegrams to the Governor. When I say the people are fed up that may be much too weak a description of their feelings.

There are objections to the said recommendations, and we are letting your office know of this prior to the June 28, 1976 deadline.

We are awaiting your reply.

If you had any guts, you would have long ago enacted legislation to ban non-returnable containers.

This would have made it unnecessary to have a petition drive to get it on the fall ballot.

When are you Congressmen going to listen to your constituents. Instead of the lobbyists? Never I guess. Those free meals and drinks taste too good.

MOVE TO RECALL THREE CALLED SILLY

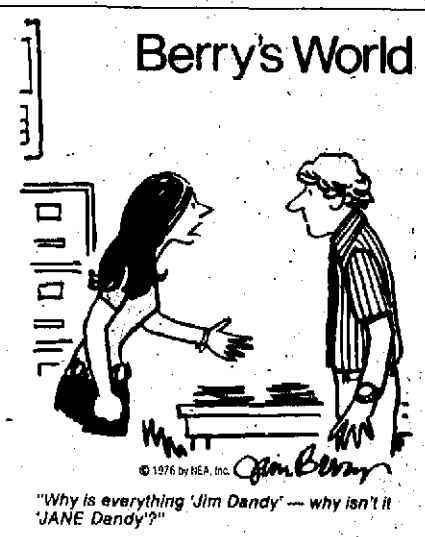

Editor,

Since Benton Harbor's recall election, the remaining commissioners have been unable to conduct the affairs of the city because Helen Ford hasn't been present.

Now a new recall drive is in effect to oust the three remaining commissioners because they claim the city isn't functioning now. I think this effort is silly and outrageous because the remaining three, Yarbrough, Bolin, and Eaman, can't tie Helen Ford up to assure that she would be present.

Helen Ford should be recalled and should have been a long time ago. If she isn't concerned about the city than she shouldn't work for it. For the last month or so she has been gallivanting here and there and hasn't expressed the slightest bit of concern or respect about how the rest of the commission is going to operate. What can they do now? If commissioners

D. Duck: Mexico's Capitalist Pig

MONTEREY, Mexico — Is Donald Duck a bad influence on this side of the border? Anti-American nationalists here are spreading the word that the quacker, read by millions of semiliterate Mexicans, is a tool of capitalism and an enemy of the working man. He is forever trying to get Uncle Scrooge's millions, is he not? And what about Huey, Louie and Dewey — all they seem to want from life is another nickle for the ice cream store.

Less publicly, the nationalists whisper about Mr. Duck's personal life. Why doesn't he marry Daisy and make her an honest woman? Clearly the foul-mouthed little beast is only interested in the pursuit of material pleasures. He lies, he cheats, he plots, he blasphemes — and, by the way, does he ever do an honest day's work?

If the nationalists had their way, no doubt, D. Duck would never again corrupt the pious instincts of the Mexican peasantry. Lacking such censorship authority, however, critics use the comic character as an example of what America has become through capitalism and what Mexico must avoid through socialism. Better the people should read Marx than Mickey Mouse, except there are fewer pictures.

To be sure, Disney is still the author of choice among Mexico's 56 million citizens. But the other fellow has had a growing and increasingly influential following — so much so, actually, that democrats on both sides of the border are once again asking an old, evasive, but decidedly worrisome question: Is Mexico going Communist?

The evidence of recent years is inconclusive, but not to be ignored. At the least, Mexico is going in the opposite direction from democracy. The party that has ruled the country since the revolution (the Institutional Revolutionary Party, or PRI) has become a synonym for absolute authority. It now has a closed shop in the Mexican senate; controls 99 per cent of the Mexican house, and rules in 9 out of 10 state and local offices. Its presidential candidate this year, Jose Lopez Portillo, is running without opposition.

Since PRI has become ever more liberal in its philosophy, conservative Americans and Mexicans are seeing Reds behind every mesquite shrub. Last month 30 U.S. congressmen wrote President Ford of the Mexican "situation" and its "grave implications for our national security." At the same time concerned groups in Mexico, such as the Mexican Institute for Social and Economic Research, are saying: "We are losing our freedoms. Things go bad here. The state is subverted by socialists."

This pessimism is particularly strong in Monterey, the industrial center of northern Mexico, and free enterprise to the last peso. Lunch hour here is filled with gloomy talk of agrarian reform, educational prejudice and economic instability. And with reason. When it wishes, the government can confiscate the private property of anyone owning more than 230 acres. Since higher education is dependent on government funding, it is also openly subservient to government propaganda. As for the economy, present inflation is about 10 per cent.

The gloomiest conversationalist of all in Monterey, perhaps, is P.E. Madero, an executive of Mexico's opposition party (the National Action Party, or PAN). He was to have been the opposition candidate for president this year, but lacking any chance the party decided against going through the motions of an authentic democratic contest.

The precise danger is unknown. For everyone here who believes the country is going Communist, there is another who feels the next revolution will be led by the fascists. Meanwhile, as usual, few in authority are paying much attention north of the line. Wherever Mexico is going, America may be the last to know. We seem to share little with these people except a 1,300-mile border and Donald Duck.

Connally Builds Strength In GOP

WASHINGTON — President Ford's private half-hour conference with John Connally last week was a significant sign of Connally's steadily increasing stature within the Republican Party.

They did not discuss the vice presidency, informed sources insist. But Ford did seek Connally's political advice about the makeup of certain delegations, the outlook for the GOP congressional races, and ways of battling Democrat Jimmy Carter in the fall.

Such a session did nothing to weaken the possibility that Ford might turn to Connally in August as his running mate, since it apparently reflected Ford's recognition of Connally as an able politician. It also may have been an attempt by Ford to enmesh Connally and make him a part of the Ford campaign, whether Connally wants to be or not.

Connally, former governor of Texas, refused to endorse either Ford or Reagan before his sale's primary and has remained publicly neutral ever since. Ford did not ask for an endorsement and none was given during their meeting, according to the informed sources.

Connally has withheld an endorsement because he is looking beyond this year's divisive battle to 1980 and doesn't want to alienate either man's supporters. He has spent the past year establishing his Republican credentials, speaking several nights a week at fund-raising affairs for the national committee and local GOP congressional candidates. When he joined the party three years ago, he was viewed with suspicion as a turncoat. He has worked hard, and apparently successfully, to overcome that. The fact that Connally is frequently mentioned as a possible Ford running mate is also testimony to the rehabilitation of his credibility, at least within the Republican Party. A little more than a year ago, Connally was acquitted after a jury trial on charges that he accepted $10,000 as an illegal bribe from a dairy farm organization in 1971. And while he was officially cleared, the suggestion of wrongdoing, no matter how mistaken, is normally fatal to a political future.

In addition, Connally was a Nixon protégé. The specter of Nixon hangs over this campaign, and anyone associated with him is bound to be somewhat tarnished.

There have been reports that a private poll is being considered on Connally's behalf, which would seek to determine how the public at large perceives him. If it showed that he is still viewed as a man of integrity, it could be useful in dispelling any last-minute objections to his candidacy should Ford be inclined to choose him for the ticket.

Connally associates, however, say that Connally is not primarily interested in the vice presidential nomination. There is ample evidence that he would take it if offered, if he could win assurances about the sort of role he would be expected to play.

BH Quorum Try Looks Like Failure

By JERRY KRIEGER
Farm and Features Editor

Last minute efforts to pull the remaining five members of the Benton Harbor city commission together in a quorum appeared doomed to failure today. And with two members scheduled to be out of town all next week, hopes of getting a quorum now seemed to be slim until after the Fourth of July.

A hastily called session for 8:30 this morning drew only two commissioners, Arnold Bolin and Edmund Eaman. And another meeting set for noon today appeared to have little better chance of success.

The morning and noon meeting times today were set after Commissioners Bolin and Eaman, City Manager James Peoples Jr. and City Attorney K. Morris Gavin found in Lansing yesterday—as they had been told earlier—that Governor Milliken does not have legal authority to appoint additional commission members.

The commission has five members, just enough for a legal quorum, since Mayor Charles Joseph and three other commissioners were ousted by a recall election in May. But the continuing absence of Mrs. Helen Ford, a Clean State partner with the ousted four, has left the city governing body powerless to conduct city business.

Commissioner Eaman said this morning that Roy Williams, an urban affairs specialist on the governor's staff, contacted Mrs. Ford, who was in Lansing on other business yesterday, and was told she would attend a commission meeting at 8:30 this morning. Eaman's said she had stipulated that she would come provided only city financial matters would be discussed. Mrs. Ford did not appear for the scheduled meeting this morning.

Mrs. Ford did, however, file a letter of formal complaint this morning, claiming that petitions for a recall election against her are insufficient. The letters went to T.J. Carter, acting Benton Harbor city clerk, and Forrest Kesterke, Berrien county clerk.

She charged that the petitions did not contain a stamp or seal of certification by either Carter or Kesterke; that, if a report the ballots are already at the printers is true, she has been denied the right to put in statement on the ballot justifying her conduct in office; and that 44 of the signatures did not have the required signing dates.

She also challenged another 67 signatures among the total of 84 certified by the clerks. The undated signatures alone could cut the number of signatures below the required minimum of 157.

Wholesale Electric Rate Boost Is Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 30-day delay in the implementation of a wholesale power rate hike by the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. has been approved by the Federal Power Commission.

As a result of the decision, the utility's $4.3 million rate hike for 15 municipal utilities and seven Rural Electric Membership Cooperatives in Indiana and Michigan will take effect July 27 instead of June 27.

The order affects 12 municipalities in Indiana. The cities include Anderson, Richmond, Gas City, Warren, Auburn, Avilla, Bluffton, Columbus City, Garrett, Mishawaka, New Carlisle and Frankton.

The municipal power companies and the REMCs had asked for the delay in order to give them more time to fight the rate increase. The local utilities must pass the increase on to their customers.

(Indiana & Michigan Electric officials locally said they did not know yet if the Federal Power Commission delay order applied to three cities and one electric cooperative in Michigan that I&M furnishes power wholesale. The cities are Niles, South Haven and Sturgis, and the cooperative is the Fruitbelt Electric Coop, which has its headquarters in Cassopolis.)

The contract covers 52 principals, coordinators and supervisors in the district. It was the first contract for this group and included a 10 per cent pay increase and an added 5 per cent in pension payments.

Candidates

'Ungarbled'

A dropped line of type in Wednesday's Herald-Palladium caused the names of Edward Mattix and Robert Dennison to be omitted as candidates for Berrien county board of commissioners from the Sixth district.

The same mischance also caused the names of Otto Grau and Inzen Brownlow to be shown as candidates in the Sixth district.

Incumbent Mattix, a Republican, and Dennison, a Democrat, are the candidates in the Sixth district, which covers most of the City of St. Joseph and a portion of St. Joseph township.

Gräu, incumbent Republican, and Brownlow, Democrat, are the candidates in the Seventh district, which embraces portions of St. Joseph city, St. Joseph township, Royaltown township and Lincoln township.

The story in which the error occurred dealt with a Meet Your Candidates meeting scheduled by the Twin Cities Area Chamber of Commerce on July 8 at Riverview park, St. Joseph.

Watervliet Bank Plans New Branch In Millburg

Plans for constructing a new full service branch bank in Millburg were revealed last night at the Benton township planning commission meeting by First National Bank of Watervliet officials.

The bank also plans to construct an identical branch bank off Red Arrow highway in Coloma township.

Robert Reinking, bank

president, said the new Millburg branch bank will require a zoning change and asked the township planning commission to extend commercial zoning of the proposed bank site along Territorial road from its present depth of 50 feet to 325 feet to accommodate the new structure.

Presently 50 feet of property off Territorial is zoned commercial with the remaining 275-foot portion zoned agricultural.

The commission tentatively set Thursday, July 22, for a public hearing on the bank's request.

Reinking told the planning commission the existing Millburg branch facilities, leased from Eldon M. Smith Insurance company are overcrowded.

The bank has purchased a tract of property, 200 by 325 feet, approximately 68 feet west of its present branch office in Millburg as the site for the new 2,000 square foot structure.

Reinking said parking for 24 cars would be located on the site, with the bank containing five teller windows, three drive-in windows, private offices, a receptionist area plus 26-foot-wide entrance and exit driveways.

Plans call for opening bids July 16 for the two identical banks, with the second, as previously announced, to be constructed off Red Arrow highway in Coloma township.

James Benson, township planning commission chairman, told Reinking the zoning change could take up to two months to complete.

The request was referred to the commission's land use committee for review pending the public hearing.

In other areas, the land use committee was assigned the task of obtaining additional information, concerning site plans and parking area, for a special use permit requested by the Main Street Seventh-day Adventist church for constructing a new church on their property at Euclid and Highland avenues. The 12-acre tract is at the northwest corner of the intersection.

A request from M. E. Burket, 3135 Territorial road, in rezoning a parcel of land 152 by 300 feet from residential to commercial was tabled until the commission's July 8 meeting.

Burket plans to use the property for both a trailer sales and a chain saw repair location.

Attend Kiwanis Convention

Mr. and Mrs. Norbert Kent, 2727 South Lake Shore drive, St. Joseph, and Mr. and Mrs. Mel Strunk, 312 Kephart lane, Berrien Springs, were among more than 18,000 people attending the 61st convention of Kiwanis International in San Diego, Calif., this week.

BANK PLANS REVEALED: Robert Reinking, left, president of First National Bank of Watervliet, and Carlton Rowe, Millburg branch manager and vice president, display sketch and floor plan for two identical full-service branch banks planned to be constructed in Millburg and Coloma township. Plans for new Millburg branch, replacing present office opened in 1960, were revealed at last night's Benton township planning commission meeting. (Cliff Stevens photo)

The summer season of concerts presented by the St. Joseph municipal band begins this Sunday at 2:30 p.m. when the 1976 edition of the band appears at the band shell, according to Conductor John C.N. Howard.

Howard said the first concert will be repeated at 7:30 p.m. Sunday and the two-day format is followed each Sunday from the last Sunday in June through Labor Day.

After "Strike Up the Band", the theme song which Howard will be directing for the 29th year, the band will play "Salute to the Stars and Stripes", "Michigan", "The Billboard", the Rossini overture to "Semiramide", Leroy Anderson's "Serenade" and a medley of George M. Cohan's great songs.

Guests of the band Sunday will be some members of the "Sounds of 78", a musical organization of 120 high school honors musicians from all over the state.

Howard said a small group from this 120 will provide samplers at each concert Sunday to provide a preview of what may be expected at their full concert to be presented Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The band shell is located on Port street near Lake boulevard.

Varied Outdoor Activities Highlight Day Camp

ANNUAL DAY CAMP: Girl Scout annual day camp was held this year on the Harry Zick farm, south of St. Joseph. Six units of Scouts were active in a variety of outdoor activities. One unit, the Stars and Stripes,

OUTDOOR COOKING: Girl Scouts in the Liberty Bells unit help cook meals during the annual day camp held at the Harry Zick farm. "Chefs" are from left, Tammy Peck, Beth Tegels and Michele Dahm. During the camp, the Liberty Bells went on scavenger hunts, had bird seed snacks, found deer tracks and made macrame bracelets. The location of the camp included a river, lake and sandy beach.

CRAFT PROJECTS: The Day Campers unit at Girl Scout day camp make craft projects at the shore of the river. From left are Sandra Góines, Lisa Miller and Beth Kushman. The unit also made nature books and went on hikes. The Teddy Bear unit made play dough, a unique unit flag, and outlined teddy bears with yarn. (Staff photos)

NATURE ACTIVITIES: The Brownie Bells unit at the annual Girl Scout day camp spent most of their time in nature activities. Among their projects was to make animals with stones and stone painting. Brownie Bells from left, are Laura Tegels, who is making a tissue flower, and Dawn Parker and Vicky Fairbanks, who are gluing stones together. While searching the woods, the girls found a woodchuck and a yellow finch nest.

Trys To Change Snake's Image

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Louise Milko says snakes have been getting bad publicity since the days of Adam and Eve. She maintains, however, that snakes make nice pets.

Mrs. Milko should know — she has 33 boa constrictors. She bought her first pet boa from a pet store and the second from a Connecticut public television auction three years ago.

The 8½-foot mother and 9½-foot father snakes took three years to reproduce. Mrs. Milko said she plans to sell the 31 baby snakes, but only to people who will take proper care of them.

"I feel strongly that they should not be sold to someone who will get tired of them like an Easter duck or something like that," she said.

Mrs. Milko said the baby snakes are able to get along on their own after they are born. They don't look like "baby" snakes, but like miniature adult snakes, she said.

Mrs. Milko, whose interest in snakes goes back to her childhood, encourages her children to like them.

Much of her time is devoted to changing the bad image she said snakes have acquired over the years. Since Adam and Eve, she said, snakes have always been spoken of "in connection with something bad."

She gives demonstration lectures to schools and camps emphasizing the crawling creatures' good points. Mrs. Milko said she teaches children at a young age not to fear snakes. She says that way they won't grow into adults who have been "brainwashed" by the snake's bad press.

Plan Old-Time Vaudeville Show In Lawrence

LAWRENCE — An old-time vaudeville show will be presented in Lawrence Wednesday, June 30.

The Bicentennial Vaudeville Show Wagon will present a mini-show in the village park at 2 p.m. and a full-length performance at the high school athletic field at 8 p.m.

The afternoon performance is free. A donation of $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for children will be asked for the evening performance. Children accompanying adults will be admitted free for the evening show.

The appearance in Lawrence is sponsored by the Lawrence Bicentennial Committee. The Vaudeville Show Wagon is presented by the Department of Theatre of Western Michigan University and has been made possible as a Bicentennial activity through the support of the Michigan Council for the Arts and the National Endowment for the Arts with scenery transportation by Ryder Truck.

The touring company is composed of 12 actors, singers, instrumentalists and dancers who perform songs, dances, skits, magic and other "amazing acts and feats." The show is modeled after the old family vaudeville of the nation's Centennial era.

The troupe travels with its own transportable stage, sound and lighting equipment, period costumes, properties, scenery and rigging and patriotic bunting.

Lawrence will be the ninth stop on a tour of 35 communities throughout the state during June, July and August. The company also offers "mini-entertainment" for nursing and rest homes, street corners and parades. The main show is 90 minutes long.

The material performed by the troupe is designed to recreate actual vaudeville attractions of the second half of the 19th century.

The show in Lawrence will be the group's only presentation in southwestern Michigan.

In case of inclement weather, the show will be presented in the high school gymnasium. Those wishing further information may contact Mrs. William (Phyllis) Heldt, Lawrence Bicentennial committee chairman.

The Best Of Two Worlds

If you're wild for strawberries and mad for chocolate, put them together in this glorious

Chocolate Strawberry Ice Cream Pie. You'll have the best of both worlds!

Start with an easy-to-make chocolate crumb crust, and pour into it a silky smooth chocolate cream filling made from canned chocolate flavored syrup, sweetened condensed milk and whipping cream.

When that layer is frozen, top it with a delectable strawberry cream layer and allow the pie to freeze until serving time. You'll find it makes a sweet ending to a summer supper.

While on the subject of chocolate and strawberries, why not introduce the children to the special allure of an old-fashioned chocolate-strawberry ice cream soda. Most of today's youngsters have never even tasted that old-time drugstore treat. In case you've forgotten how to put one together, simply pour a generous amount of canned chocolate flavored syrup into a tall soda glass, add a couple of scoops of strawberry ice cream, then fill the glass with club soda. Stick in a couple of straws and enjoy!

CHOCOLATE STRAWBERRY ICE CREAM PIE
Chocolate Crumb Crust:

One and one-half cups vanilla wafer crumbs (about 15 wafers)

One-third cup unsweetened cocoa

One-third cup confectioners' sugar

Six tablespoons butter or margarine, melted

Combine crumbs, cocoa and sugar in a bowl. Gradually add butter or margarine while stirring to completely coat crumb mixture. Spoon into nine-inch pie pan. Press firmly against bottom and sides to form crust; freeze.

Chocolate Cream Filling:
Three-fourths cup canned chocolate flavored syrup

One-third cup sweetened condensed milk

One egg yolk

One teaspoon vanilla

One cup whipping cream (do not use non-dairy whipped toppings)

One egg white

One tablespoon sugar

Combine chocolate syrup, condensed milk, and egg yolk in a small heavy saucepan. Stir constantly over medium heat until mixture boils. Remove from heat; add vanilla. Cool; chill thoroughly.

Whip cream; fold into chocolate mixture. Beat egg white until foamy; add sugar and beat until stiff peaks form. Fold into chocolate cream mixture. Pour into pie shell. Freeze until firm.

Strawberry Cream Topping:

One cup whipping cream

Two-thirds cup pureed sweetened strawberries, well drained

Two tablespoons sugar

Two tablespoons light corn syrup

Whip cream; blend in strawberry puree, sugar and corn syrup. Spoon onto frozen chocolate filling. Cover and freeze until serving time. Garnish with fresh sliced strawberries, if desired.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Mother Defends Divorce

Dear Ann Landers: This is an open letter to my children who will, I'm sure, recognize themselves without my initials or the name of the city from which it comes.

Dear Children: I've had it with your pointed remarks about growing up in a "split" home. After several years of trying (without success) to convince your father that his children needed his love and attention (to say nothing of his financial support), there was nothing for me to do but leave him and go to work myself.

Now, after 20 years, I resent the references to your emotional "hangups" and the "bruises" inflicted on your psyches because you grew up with an man in the house.

Would you rather I had stayed with your non-loving, non-working non-dad, in spite of the fact that he also "non-loved" me? Would you have been happier with a selfish, lazy, indifferent father than no father at all? I admit I made a big mistake and I am sorry. I married the wrong boy because I was too young and inexperienced to know he would never be a man. Please let up on me with your complaints about your "damaged psyches." Bear in mind that my psyche has taken a bit of a beating, too. — Your Loving Mother

Dear Mother: Your name is legion, lady. I applaud your courage for speaking out in behalf of all mothers who share the problem.

Hates Old People

Dear Ann Landers: I have a problem that I hope you can help me with. To tell the truth, I'm ashamed to go to anyone who knows me. I'm a male, age 27, married to a pretty (but stubborn) girl. We have no children.

My grandmother lives about 100 miles away. She is a widow. Grandma was awfully good to us kids when we were growing up. I really love her a lot. She will be celebrating her 75th birthday in a few weeks. I want to drive over, spend the day with her and then take her out to the best restaurant in town.

My wife says she hasn't anything against my grandmother, but she can't stand old people. When I ask why, she doesn't know — just says, "Everyone has a pet hate and this is mine." What should I do about it, Ann? — Muddled And In The Middle

Dear Mid: So your wife hates old people? What does she think will happen to her? Does she plan to shoot herself when she reaches 80?

Tell that mixed-up lady to find something to do on your grandmother's 75th birthday because you plan to be out of town. (P.S. Bring Grandma a white orchid corsage. She'll love it.)

Height Is Asset

Dear Ann: I am a teenage girl who is five-nine and a half. I once read in the paper about a girl who had an operation to cut down the bones in her legs to make her four inches shorter. Do you know the name of the doctor who performed that operation and the city he lives in? Thanks a lot for your help.

— Heading For Giraffe-hood
Dear Friend: I could give you the information, but I won't. The operation is a complicated one — and somewhat risky. I would never recommend such surgery to a reader, much less be a party to it.

Learn to walk in a regal manner, young lady. Hold your head high. Be proud of your height. It can be a genuine asset instead of a handicap, if you view it as such.

Even if drinking is the "in" thing in your crowd, it needn't crowd you out. Learn the facts from Ann Landers's booklet, "Booze and You — For Teenagers Only." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

People are always mourning the passing of the old general store, that wonderful meeting place in the old West where you could buy a chain saw and a dozen eggs, a length of calico or kerosene for the lamps.

I've never been sure in my mind that it disappeared.

As my husband and I put away the groceries the other day he said, "Where do you want the salt for the water softener?"

"In the garage. The kids can lug it around to the side yard."

"And the garden hose and the charcoal lighter?"

"On the porch."

"Hey, you got a lot of goodies this week," he said, pulling out a pair of men's sandals.

"I know. We were out of everything. Wanta put these bath towels on the dining room table? I'll run them back when we finish unpacking. But the prices," I added. "I don't know how big families afford to eat. Here, put these lightbulbs in the drawer. I did get a good buy on underwear this week — three for $4."

"Did you check on the car seat that was in the ad?"

"Yeah, but I think I can do better at another supermarket across town."

"Ummm. This looks rummy, what is it?"

"A bundt, pan. Got that special coating on it so the cake won't stick. Makes your mouth water, doesn't it?"

"Why candles? You know they're more expensive when they're out of season."

"I know, but I just craved to see those green ones in the dining room."

"I hope you got there early enough to get the plants while they were fresh."

"They were a little picked over, but I found a great diet-fennel. In fact, I had Ralph divide them into two pots so I can give mother one and use the other myself. I love a store that has a garden man. None of those pre-packaged deals."

"Incidentally," said my husband, "what's for lunch?"

I shuffled through the greeting cards, zippers, anti-freeze, dark glasses, pots, pans, insecticide, paperbacks, and clothesline and finally said, "You wanta run down to the store and get some lunch meat? And don't get distracted by things we can't eat!"

third club and promptly led a heart to dummy. Maybe West would hop up with his ace and let me make what looked like an impossible contract. That didn't happen. He played low and I had to pin up dummy's king.

I drew trumps, stopping in dummy, led back a heart toward my hand, went into a huddle and finally played a low heart West had to play his ace and my rather poor contract had waltzed in.

Ask the Jacobys

We have been asked what an obligatory finesse is.

Today's article gives an example. The only way Jim Jacoby could make his contract, after West held back his ace on the first heart lead was to play low and hope that the ace would have to be played. The play isn't really a finesse, but it certainly is obligatory.

U.S. Puts Off N-Waste Site Drilling Tests

DETROIT (AP) — Federal scientists have put off drilling designed to find out if rock formations in northeastern Lower Michigan are suitable for underground disposal of radioactive nuclear wastes.

The U.S. Energy and Research Development Administration (ERDA), promised in a letter released Thursday that an environmental assessment of the drilling would be written and approved by the Council on Environmental Quality before drilling begins. Test drilling to a depth of up to 4,000 feet had originally been slated for this month. State officials have described the boring itself as a routine geological procedure.

Frank Barnowski, ERDA's director of nuclear fuel recycling, emphasized that Michigan remained merely one of 50 areas under consideration for regional dumping of radioactive wastes. Studies on the environmental implications of nuclear dumping would come later, if Michigan is still in the running as one of the sites. In addition to the environmental study, Barnowski promised to comply with the Intergovernmental Cooperation Act by notifying state and local authorities in the area under consideration.

Barnowski's promises came in a letter to Rep. Philip Ruppe, R-Mich., who last month disclosed that ERDA had been holding secret discussions with state natural resources officials about a proposed site in the counties of Alpena, Presque Isle or Montmorency.

AID BILL SIGNING: Michigan Gov. William Milliken signed a bill Thursday granting $27.8 million in state aid to Detroit. Approximately 40 citizens and legislators were present for the signing in Lansing. (AP Wirephoto)

A $27.8 MILLION 'STOP-GAP'

Milliken Signs Detroit Aid Bill

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken signed into law Thursday a $27.8 million Detroit aid bill which he said would infuse the city with "stop-gap, short-term" money.

Milliken said the rescue measure was "the indispensable first and most important step" in helping the city get on its feet.

Milliken promised meetings in the near future with Detroit Mayor Coleman Young to discuss other ways to help the city.

The Detroit aid bill, which appropriates the money for the next fiscal year beginning Oct. 1, contained an annual $800,000 state subsidy for the Pontiac Stadium.

Detroit, with a budget of about $700 million, has a projected deficit of $103 million in the next fiscal year.

The bill grants $9.5 million for the Detroit Public Library, $9.2 million for 1976-77 payment on the unsecured accrued pension liability of the Detroit Department of Transportation; $8 million, or half of the operating deficit of Detroit General Hospital; $800,000 for the Public Health Laboratory; and $529,000 for the Detroit Health Department.

Detroit has laid off hundreds of workers and cut its budget by $46 million to meet a threatened deficit this year.

Unlike New York City, the problems of Detroit — the nation's fifth largest city — do not stem from defaulting on bonds or notes. Detroit has been plagued by a high jobless rate linked to problems in the auto industry, a dwindling tax base caused by the exit of people and industry, and rising costs.

Without state aid, Detroit would have faced service cuts and more layoffs.

NEW PHOTOS FROM SPACE Mars Mystery Deepens

By RICHARD SALTUS
AP Science Writer

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Far from solving Martian mysteries, fresh photos from Viking 1 are instead challenging scientists to explain a landscape that grows more puzzling day by day.

On one count, however, pictures received at Jet Propulsion Laboratory early Thursday were reassuring: they seemed to show there will be enough hazard-free terrain for a safe Viking landing July 4.

"There is an enormous variety of terrain; some looks catastrophic but some looks just fine," said Dr. Harold Masursky, landing site team leader.

Another scientist described the newest pictures taken by the orbiting Viking spacecraft as "comforting" and expressed increasing optimism that the landing site chosen long before the mission started would prove feasible.

The photos, the second batch received since photography from orbit began on Tuesday, again, showed channels and numerous other features carved on the surface by natural forces.

A peppering of large and small craters was seen again, some of them now being viewed as the mouths of young volcanoes. Some cratered areas are much like regions on the moon, it was reported.

The photos also showed several thin, bright lines which scientists were at a loss to explain. "We don't have the vaguest clue of what this feature is," said Masursky as he pointed out one of the lines that led to the base of a volcanic crater, continued on the other side and went on to touch two distant craters.

Because of so much past speculation about intelligent life on Mars, Masursky in jest referred to the feature as a road, and even got a small rise out of a colleague — Dr. B. Gentry Lee — by calling it "Gentry's Freeway." It was a joke precisely because the idea of artificial structures on Mars was discarded long ago.

The landing area, called Chryse, lies on a low plain etched by a number of winding channels. The area is thought to have been shaped by water in the distant past, but Masursky and other scientists are somewhat at odds over how this happened.

Two Are Treated After SJ Crackups

Two people were released after treatment at Memorial hospital, St. Joseph, for injuries sustained Thursday in two separate traffic accidents, St. Joseph police reported.

Police said a car-pickup collision about 6:50 p.m. on Main street north of Lake boulevard resulted in an injury to the auto passenger, Gregory Nozicka, 16, of 2160 Pawnee path, Stevensville. Driver of the car was identified as Terry Lee Hauch, 16, of 3618 Hiawatha lane, Stevensville, and the pickup driver was identified as Robert Dean Elliott, 38, Sumner, Iowa. Neither driver was hurt and no tickets were issued.

The other accident, a three-car collision, occurred at the intersection of Niles and Napier avenues about 2:50 p.m., police reported.

Injured was one of the drivers, Pamela H. Schaefer, 27, of 835 Wolcott avenue, St. Joseph. The other two drivers, neither of whom was hurt, were identified as Michael C. Wagner, 27, of 1200 East Empire avenue, Benton township, and Arthur Wyman, 81, route 1, box 200, Rocky Wood road, Berrien Springs. Police said Wyman was cited for failure to stop for a red light.

PORT HURON, Mich. (AP) — Detroit Edison will carry out a limited amount of construction work this summer at the Greenwood power plant project northwest of here, officials said Thursday. Construction on the $320 million plant was halted in 1974 due to financial difficulties.

Two Illinoisans Demand Hearings On Gun Counts

Two Illinois men charged in separate cases with carrying concealed pistols in cars demanded preliminary examinations Thursday in Berrien Fifth District court.

Jailed under $1,000 bonds were Eddie N. Moore, 33, of Chicago, accused of the gun violation June 23 in Coloma township, and Kenneth J. Kass, 25, of Wheeling, accused of the offense June 24 in Lincoln township.

Bound over in Circuit court was John Dillon, 29, of 670 East Vineyard, Benton Harbor, on a charge of larceny of money in a building — the Progressive Oil station in Benton township — on May 26. He continued jailed

Two More Niles Police Officers Waive Hearings On Suspension

NILES — Two more Niles police officers indicted by the Berrien county citizens grand jury have waived public hearings before the Niles safety board on their suspensions from the force.

Melvin House, chairman of the board, said the suspensions of Capt. Paul Winquist and Patrolman William Raabe have been continued by the board indefinitely.

House said both officers were suspended without pay following their indictments on grounds of conduct unbecoming an officer.

Declining to set a date when the board will decide on the fate of Winquist and Raabe, as well as four other suspended officers, Gary Koller, William Mason, Alan DeLoe and Michael Lewandowski, House said a ruling "shan't be too long" away.

House said that neither Winquist nor Raabe appeared at the public hearing held Tuesday night at the Niles city hall. He said the board received a letter from Winquist stating that on advice of his attorney, he would waive the public hearing.

Raabe has made no communication with the board concerning the public hearing, House said.

House said that the safety board can either dismiss the officers from the force or reinstate them with or without back pay.

The other four officers have also been suspended indefinitely without pay and had waived public hearings on the suspensions from the force.

On June 8, Winquist was bound over to Berrien circuit court on a charge of committing perjury March 18 before the grand jury. A second felony charge that Winquist, 48, received and concealed a stolen typewriter valued at over $100 was reduced June 8 to a misdemeanor charge.

Raabe, 40, was bound over to Circuit court on May 19 to face a charge of perjury before the grand jury. On May 28, he was bound over to circuit court on a second charge of perjury and a charge of breaking and entering a Niles factory. A third perjury charge has been dismissed. On June 8, Koller, 21, was cleared of charges of committing perjury 10 times before the grand jury. Mason, 38, was also cleared of two perjury charges on June 8.

Preliminary examination for Lewandowski, 33, on nine counts of perjury, one count of breaking and entering, inducing a former officer to perjure under $10,000 bond.

Sentenced were: Romeo McMurtrey, 30, of Grand Rapids, and Mark E. Callendar, 18, of 2647 Niles road, St. Joseph, three days in jail and fine and costs of $60 each for driving while license suspended.

William L. Schott, 41, of 406 Hickory, Three Oaks, $100 for reckless use of a pistol June 13 in Three Oaks.

Billy N. Shaw, 31, of Chicago, $50 for carrying an uncased shotgun in a car June 24 in Lincoln township.

Rovelma Hudson, 17, of Eastland avenue, Benton township, $121 or 30 days in jail for petty larceny of baby lotion and cosmetics — at Benton township Oso Drug April 27.

Stephen W. Yoder, 18, of Mishawaka, Ind., $100 and six months probation for use of marijuana at Warren Dunes State park June 13.

Melvin Flowers Jr., 41, of 136½ Territorial, Benton Harbor, $152 for driving while intoxicated in Benton township June 23.

A charge of attempting to break into a safe was dismissed against Ray A. Bozarth, 21, of Moffett Field, Calif., was insufficient evidence against the man, Asst. Prosecutor Quentin Fulcher said.

EXPENSIVE DIET: Zippy, pet dog of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Phillips, Kalamazoo, nearly bit off more than he could chew. Even though he gnawed away a corner of this Michigan Lottery ticket, officials said it was still good for last night's weekly lottery drawing. It was a $5,000 winner and may win more. (AP Wirephoto)

He Dealt Himself A Winner

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — A 60-year-old party store owner who dealt himself a winning lottery ticket was the $200,000 prizewinner in Thursday's Michigan lottery weekly drawing.

Party store owner Stanley Medrek of Detroit, who has won $25 lottery prizes 50 different times, said he buys $8 to $10 worth of lottery tickets a week from his own store. That's where he picked up his big winner.

He plans to take his wife, Mary, on a vacation until they decide how to spend their money.

The $25,000 winner was Leonard Zimmerman, 30, of Taylor. The $15,000 was last week's comeback winner, Betty Buslow, 48, of Marysville.

The $12,500 winner was Antonio Basso, 48, of Dearborn.

The $10,000 winner was Harry Orr, 61, of Wyandotte.

The $5,000 winner last night, and comeback winner for next week, is Lori Phillips, 20, of Kalamazoo, whose dog gnawed away a corner of her lottery ticket and almost kept her out of the drawing.

Because Mrs. Phillips' dog, Zippy, chomped her ticket, it took a week for the lottery bureau to validate it. As comeback winner, Mrs. Phillips is guaranteed of $5,000 next week and is eligible for up to $200,000.

SJ Insurance Man Heading To Trial On Larceny Counts

A St. Joseph insurance man accused of converting policy payments to his own use was bound over to Circuit court on two charges yesterday, and then was arraigned in Berrien District court on now, similar charges.

Bound over was Joseph K. Weimann, 30, of 2917 West Marquette Woods road, Stevensville, facing two charges of larceny of over $100 by conversion. He allegedly accepted money for auto insurance policies and did not turn the money over to the insurance companies.

Complainants in the cases heard yesterday were Diane Watts, of St. Joseph, and Julius Borah, of Benton Harbor.

Dianne Watts paid Weimann about $200 that was not applied to a policy, District Judge Leo Cook ruled. Borah paid $189 for renewal of a policy that was never renewed, Chief Asst.

Prosecutor Robert McDowell said.

Weimann then demanded examinations on two new charges. He is accused of larceny of over $100 by conversion from Ron Engen Dec. 2 in St. Joseph township, and obtaining over $100 using false pretenses from Gene Liogghio Jan. 3 in Brittanian. He was released on personal recognizance bonds.

Ford Backers Win Key Test In Minnesota

By GERRY NELSON
Associated Press Writer
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — President Ford's backers won a key test at the start of Minnesota's Independent-Republican convention and appeared ready today to claim the state's 18 remaining national nominating delegates.

The convention, with more than half of the attending delegates Ford supporters, voted to require majority support for each of the 18 delegates left to be picked.

Ronald Reagan, challenging Ford for the GOP nomination, arrived here from Mississippi after the vote and reacted angrily to word of the rule change. He said he would support his backers if they decided to walk out of the state meeting in protest.

"If party unity is being hurt, it is being hurt by the other side," the former California governor declared. "We have done nothing divisive. They have done nothing except be divisive."

Reagan and Ford are locked in a tight race for the GOP nomination, with the President holding the edge. 1,008 delegates to 928 for Reagan with 1,130 needed for the nomination and 161 to be picked.

The challenger and First Lady Betty Ford were scheduled to address the Minnesota convention and mingle with delegates today.

Delegates to the Minnesota convention voted 877 to 787 to adopt the rule requiring that each national delegate get a majority vote at the state convention. About 55 per cent of the delegates favor Ford.

Reagan strategists wanted a single ballot with delegate slots given to the top 18 vote-getters. "We've got a good chance of getting all 18," said Harold LeVander Jr., co-chairman of the Ford campaign in the state, after the vote.

During a two-hour debate on the rules, Reagan backers warned that a failure to split up the 18 delegates could tear the party apart and hurt state legislative races.

Reagan forces had another complaint earlier in the day on a separate matter. They charged that the GOP's convention in August may be stacked against them because two Ford supporters will hold key positions.

The Republican National Committee's arrangements committee chose Sen. Howard Baker of Tennessee as the keynote speaker for the convention and Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas as the temporary convention chairman.

The two appointments are subject to national committee confirmation today, and Reagan's convention director, Lyn Notziger, said they probably would not be challenged then. He said they may be fought, though, when the convention begins in Kansas City.

Notziger said the Reagan

Van Buren Guide Lists 85 Agencies

By DENNIS COGSWELL
Paw Paw Bureau

PAW PAW — A new guide designed to act as a reference work for dealing with human problems is being made available through the Van Buren county Interagency Coordinating Council.

Called the "Human Services Referral Manual" the guide lists 85 different agencies and some 200 services available in southwestern Michigan for problems ranging from legal aid and family counseling to health services.

"It was primarily developed for professionals and para-professionals as a guide to where services are and what is provided," explained John Doren, a member of the council and the director of the county drug abuse program. "We think it will help reduce buck passing between agencies and help direct people to services quicker."

Each listing contains the agency's address, phone number, hours of operation, and a brief description of the services provided.

One of the manual's features is that it is in looseleaf form so that information can be added or updated. Each agency receiving a copy will receive new information by mail periodically.

Basic printing costs of the 54-page book were defrayed by contributions from the Lions clubs of Deatur, Hartford, Lawrence, Mattawan, and South Haven. Information was gathered by the coordinating council and assembled by two Western Michigan university students as a class project.

Although the manual was not specifically designed for use by the public as such, Doren said that ministers, doctors, and others may find it to be a valuable tool in referrals.

Free copies are available to persons working in public service agencies. The cost per copy to others is $1.

Copies may be obtained at the juvenile court office in the county courthouse, Paw Paw; at the substance abuse office, Village Green professional center, 900 East Michigan, Paw Paw; or at the health department branch office at 511 Huron, South Haven.

Today In History

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, June 25th, the 177th day of 1976. There are 189 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1850, North Korea invaded the Republic of Korea. It was the beginning of the Korean War.

On this date:

In 1788, Virginia ratified the U.S. Constitution.

In 1815, Napoleon Bonaparte made a farewell address before being exiled to St. Helena.

In 1876, General George Custer's force was massacred in the Battle of the Little Big Horn in Montana.

In 1818, American forces drove the Germans out of Belleau Wood, in France, after a two-week battle in World War I.

In 1934, it was announced that 16 million Americans were on relief.

In 1867, President Lyndon Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin concluded talks at Glassboro State College in New Jersey and pledged that the two countries would not let any crisis push them into nuclear war.

Ten years ago: The Vatican and Yugoslavia resumed diplomatic relations in a major move aimed at improving Roman Catholic relations with the Communist world.

Five years ago: An American art dealer purchased a 'Titan' painting at auction for $4 million.

One year ago: President Ford warned the oil-producing countries against new price increases which he said would have an adverse impact worldwide.

Today's birthdays: Broadway producer George Abbott is 87 years old. Movie director Sidney Lumet is 52.

Thought for today: We owe to the Middle Ages the two worst inventions of humanity — romantic love and gunpowder — French biographer Andre Maurois, 1885-1967.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the Virginia Convention ordered the commanding officer of continental troops in the province to take measures to prevent profanity and "all manner of gambling" as well as "every other vice and immorality."

'Welfare Garden' Readied

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Dale Miller and his crew last a day to rain in their battle against time in putting in a 10-acre garden to help feed 4,000 Summit County residents whose welfare checks were cut off.

"I'm figuring we've got another eight or 10 days to get it in the ground," Miller said Thursday. He watched a down-pour from leaden skies at his home near the heart of Akron.

"We got the bushing done," he said, speaking of clearing tall grass and weeds so plowing and discing could follow. "All we need's a couple of hours of clear weather."

When Summit County exhausted its welfare budget for general relief, Commissioner Donald M. Stephens suggested the farm operation. And Miller, the unpaid executive director of Operation Fight which combats a variety of emergencies for the county's indigent, agreed.

Miller, Stephens and others were at work Tuesday when the commission approved the use of 10 acres around what was once the county's poorhouse.

United Way Board Puts Drive Goal At $775,000

Blossomland United Way board of directors, Thursday set a goal of $775,000 for the 1976 Bicentennial year campaign, according to Henry Tippet, president.

The new pledge target is nearly four per cent over the amount of dollars raised in the over-goal 1975 campaign. Money from the annual solicitation is used to provide operating funds for some 39 local, state, and national human service agencies.

Tippet said. Contributors signed up for $746,000 in 1975 against a goal of $730,000. James Blair, allocations chairman, reported over $836,000 was requested by BHW agencies for 1977 operations.

After on-site investigations of the service programs by volunteers on the allocations committee, and formal agency presentations of 1977 dollar requests, budget specialists pared the total demand to $787,000. The final goal figure includes $50,000 for collection losses.

Dr. Walter Browe, 1976 general campaign chairman, stated that division leaders of the upcoming fall drive assessed last year's results and current economic factors in the BHW area, and recommended a goal of $774,500. Browe accepted the final goal figure on behalf of the campaign team.

Browe reported a large number of volunteers has now been recruited, with organization of the huge volunteer effort on schedule. He announced a new campaign film would be completed in a few weeks and ready for use in pressetter campaigns.

Robert Shewman, CPA, in an annual report to the board indicated the fund is in good shape. Although collections of pledges made in the 1974 campaign were low due to recession factors, an across the board reduction in agency allocations of 4.5% in June, 1975, permitted the fund to honor its commitments while keeping within its income. Directors approved a request from the Berrien County chapter of the American National Red Cross to conduct a special drive for disaster funds to aid victims of Typhoon Pamela. The media appeal will seek funds to meet the local chapter's quota in the nationwide request.

Private Schools Cannot Refuse Blacks: Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private schools may not refuse to admit black children because of their race, the Supreme Court ruled 7 to 2 today.

In an opinion by Justice Potter Stewart, the court said such racial exclusionary policies are "a classic violation" of federal civil rights law.

The court also rejected the argument that the application of this law to school admissions was an unconstitutional invasion of the privacy of families.

On top of larger box were two books, one with skull and crossbones on cover. St. Joseph Police Det. Tom Cooper called items "just weird." Items were left with finders, Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Briney, 903 Lions Park drive, who said they planned to rebury articles. (Staff photo)

Carter Has Needed Delegates

Some delegates interviewed by The AP said they would never vote for him at the convention.

Other groups of delegates have also declined to jump on the Carter bandwagon.

In Illinois, a number of delegates elected to support favorite son Sen. Adlai Stevenson III refused to support Carter, despite his endorsement by Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley. They said they would caucus at the convention.

In Oklahoma, 23 delegates remain uncommitted, pending a meeting in the near future to decide a common course.

But these neutral stances or hostility to Carter by scattered delegates seem too weak to prevent his nomination.

Other groups of delegates could swing into the Carter column by the convention. Jackson's remaining 83 New York delegates, for instance, are largely controlled by New York political leaders.

Brogno also said in his letter that the company is not interested in "day to day" resumption of work as contract negotiations continue.

He added that the firm is not interested in IUD "...efforts for coordinated bargaining and common expiration dates..." for all unions at the firm.

"We feel that your union committee's commitment to the IUD's coordinated bargaining must be a major factor as to why they do not want to settle and why the union committee refuses to take the offer back to its membership," Brogno wrote.

Doctor To Be Disciplined

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The State Department of Licensing and Regulation said this week it will discipline a Detroit doctor who allegedly performed improper abortions. Dr. Joseph W. Rucker was charged with "failing to conform to minimal standards of acceptable and prevailing medical practices in terminating pregnancies." The department said Rucker performed an abortion on one woman in her 20th week of pregnancy, and on others whose pregnancies were beyond the 14th week. Generally, abortions are not performed after the 12th week of a pregnancy. Rucker also allowed an unlicensed person to perform an abortion in violation of state law, the department charged. In addition, he failed to provide his patients with abortion counseling and used improper procedures on patients in his outpatient clinic, it said. Rucker has 20 days to respond to the charges. After that, formal action can be taken which could lead to suspension or permanent loss of his license.

Workers' Comp Prediction

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Lt. Gov. James Dammun predicted Thursday the state's embattled Workers' Compensation system will not be altered this year. Dammun heads a panel of lawmakers and gubernatorial representatives set up to work out differences over proposed changes. He said Thursday that the task force, appointed by Milliken in March, has not met since April. But he said since the Senate last week approved a "piecemeal" bill, "I question whether there's any need to continue talking." The Senate bill would set up a fund to administer the Workers' Compensation Bureau. Insurance companies would be levied an assessment which would ultimately be paid by businesses as higher premiums.

Sheriff Accused

HILLSDALE, Mich. (AP) — Hillsdale County Sheriff Edward Webb was charged Thursday with a felony and three misdemeanors involving larceny and gambling. Hillsdale District Court officials said Webb is charged with two counts of aiding and abetting a larceny by conversion. The larcenies involved a pistol and a bicycle. The charge concerning the pistol is a felony. Undersheriff James Varney also was charged in connection with the bike. Varney and Webb also are accused of taking part in poker games in the jail, while a fourth count charges Webb with running a gambling operation in the jail. Both men entered pleas of innocent. Neither had any comment.

Bill Would Let Them Stay

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Legislation to let 112 elderly people stay in their adult foster care homes is headed for the Senate. Current law allows only six people over age 65 per adult foster care facility, and Social Services Director John Dempsey had warned that 112 people living in a number of facilities would have to be relocated. But a bill the House approved 87-4 Thursday waives the current requirements facilities exceeding the six-person limit as of July 1 so those 112 people can stay where they are. Usually rapid action on the bill came shortly after Dempsey urged swift passage. Dempsey said without the bill, "a tragic injustice" would be created in which elderly people would have to move from homes where they have lived for many years.

Berrien Discusses Expansion Of Jail

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

Ways to increase the size of Berrien county's outdated jail were discussed yesterday by members of the county board's administration committee and representatives of the state jail services division and an architectural firm.

Although no decision was reached on how to expand the jail's capacity, one concept suggested during the meeting was to build a "satellite" facility to house non-felony offenders.

The county has been told to bring the jail up to state standards, since the 24-year-old facility now has a daily average of 247 inmates compared to its capacity figure of 200 inmates.

One of the problems facing the county in solving the overcrowding problem is the cost figure for a larger jail. Commissioner Otto Grau, chairman of the committee, noted an architect has presented a plan calling for $6.6 million in renovations to bring the jail up to standard. Yesterday he stated "that figure is going to have to be cut."

Grau suggested one method to cut the figure and still bring the jail up to standards might be to build a satellite facility separate from the main jail in St. Joseph to house people accused of misdemeanors or men jailed for failing to pay child support. He said the main jail would then be used only for felons.

Sheriff Forrest "Nick" Jewell told the committee he favored having all the prisoners in the same facility to reduce manpower costs. Robert Groenker, of the jail services office, related that some other counties, such as Kent county, have utilized the separate-jail concept, but noted a prisoner profile is first needed.

The profile would show the types of prisoners lodged in Berrien's jail, and things such as what percentage are felons. Grau said the prisoner profile should be completed in about a month, and the committee would then be able to assess whether the satellite facility could be feasible.

On the funding problem, Grau noted the committee hopes the renovations can come from federal revenue sharing funds, thus alleviating the need for an additional tax.

"I don't want to go to the public now for money," Grau stated. "In fact, if we held a millage election on it, I'd probably vote against it myself."

The county board has already allocated $377,101 from revenue sharing to the jail and Grau said the county hopes to put about $1 million in revenue sharing towards the renovations. He said the county anticipates getting another 3½ years of revenue sharing funds which would go to the jail.

"We may have to eventually go for some millage but the intent is to work with the money that's available," Grau noted, adding that any additions may have to be built in stages as the money comes in. "We don't want to coddle the prisoners," he emphasized.

The committee during the meeting also asked Clark R. Ackley, a Lansing architect, to submit a contract as the architect for the project, and the committee, as well as Jewell, all expressed approval of Ackley as architect.

Groenker expressed some hope for the renovation at the Berrien jail when he noted the national average for building a jail is $40.00 per bed, and said nearly all Michigan jails are under the national average. "I can see no reason why Berrien county's also can't be under the average," Groenker told a reporter.

He also referred to Berrien county as an "exemplary county." He noted the jail services office developed new rules governing county jails at the beginning of the year, and Berrien county had been complying with all of the new rules as a matter of course even before they were announced.

INTENSIVE CARE UNIT: This view shows Rose Bell, registered nurse, at nurse's station in center of new eight-bed intensive and coronary care unit added to Pawating hospital, Niles. All rooms are visible from nurse's station. Hospital has purchased new monitoring equipment costing over $50,000 to supplement existing equipment. Also on newly added floor are 20 patient rooms providing 34 new beds. With additions, bed capacity has increased from 153 to 178. Just completed additions were part of overall $4.5 million construction program. Older parts of hospital are now scheduled to be renovated. (Mike McDonough photos)

Orders A's To Use Trio

Kuhn Fights Finley

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn went to bat again and took a swing at a pitch of Oakland A's owner Charles Finley.

If Kuhn thought he had hit a game-winning homer, he quickly learned there are more innings to be played before this game is over.

Kuhn announced Thursday he was directing Finley that Vida Blue, Rollie Fingers and Joe Rudi be allowed to rejoin the A's immediately.

Finley's next pitch was that Kuhn could expect a $10 million lawsuit today.

The ruling and Finley's reaction were the latest in a wild chain of events which began the night of June 15 when Finley sold the trio for a total of $3.5 million. Blue was sold to the New York Yankees for $1.5 million, while Rudi and Fingers were purchased by Boston for a million dollars each.

The sale of the players set off a storm of protest by owners and managers, with Minnesota Twins President Calvin Griffith calling it "a dark day for baseball."

Kuhn later held a hearing into the sales and shocked most people a week ago by rejecting them and ordering that the trio be kept on the Oakland roster.

Finley then threatened legal action and ordered A's Manager Chuck Tanner to not use the trio and not allow them to be with the team during its games.

Thursday Kuhn met with Paul Corvino, a business consultant for Blue. Corvino indicated a multi-million dollar lawsuit was hanging over the commissioner's head concerning a three-year contract for Blue's services which was signed prior to his sale. Corvino said that Blue would be coming to New York today "to meet with lawyers and analyze the situation."

Blue later claimed Corvino was pitching without being sent into the game by the left-hander and said in Anaheim it might be Corvino he takes into court.

"Corvino had no authority to finalize a contract for me. He had no power of attorney," Blue said after rejoining the A's for last night's game.

All three players were in the Oakland dugout at Anaheim Thursday, but were not used. Rudi said he was depressed over his inactivity, but didn't expect to be used.

"I just want to play somewhere. It's been a dismal two weeks."

And despite the ruling, it may be a while before the players are used again.

They weren't used in Thursday's 2-1 loss at Anaheim and if they aren't used soon Kuhn may take additional action.

Although his ruling did not specifically say Finley had to play the trio, Kuhn indicated in an interview he wanted them to play.

"Lee MacPhail (the AL President) and I both feel they should be playing... not only in uniform, but playing," Kuhn said.

"We're going to Federal Court in Chicago Friday morning to file a $10 million lawsuit," Finley said. "My attorney feels the latest edict shows bad faith by Kuhn. It's not the first time he has shown that to me and the A's."

Wimbledon Women Want Equal Money

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Under the threat of a women's boycott of Wimbledon next year, the All-England Club is expected today to answer demands from Chris Evert and other top women tennis stars for equal pay with the men.

"Percentage-wise, we want equality. And unless we get it next year, we won't come," said Miss Evert, the 21-year-old honey blonde from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and No. 1 seed for the women's title.

This year the men's champion will get $21,875 while the women's champion will get $17,500. There is also less for the other women prize winners.

Miss Evert, president of the Women's Tennis Association, said the WTA was asking its members to sign a form agreeing to boycott Wimbledon in 1978 unless their demands are met.

She declined further comment on the dispute Thursday after leading the women's seeds through to the fourth round by cruising past Lesley Hunt of Australia 6-1, 6-0.

"I shall be meeting the All-England Club and presenting our case Friday morning," she said.

Unconfirmed reports about the women's demands said they also wanted an equal number of entries with the men, who have 128 competitors this year compared to 96 women.

The All-England Club, which stages the 98-year-old tournament, already has an agreement to increase the women's share of the prizes over a period of a few years until parity — at least for the winner — is reached. But Miss Evert and the WTA apparently are dissatisfied with that concession.

Defending men's title holder Arthur Ashe of Miami declined immediate comment. "I'll have to talk to Christie first," he said.

Meanwhile, Miss Evert, No. 2 seed, Eyvonne Cawley and No. 3 seed Virginia Wade of Britain won third-round victories

Thursday on sun-baked courts and in temperatures reaching 104 degrees.

Mrs. Cawley beat Corinne Molesworth of Britain 6-1, 6-1 and Miss Wade defeated Peggy Michel of Pacific Palisades, Calif., 6-3, 6-3. Fourth-seeded Martina Navratilova, the former Czech now living in Beverly Hills, Calif., beat Lea Antonoplis of Glendora, Calif., 6-1, 6-1.

Morrison Backs Maloney

TORONTO (AP) — The chief National Hockey League referee, present at a game last November in which Detroit Red Wing Dan Maloney allegedly assaulted a Toronto player, said in court Thursday he did not think Maloney used excess force.

Scotty Morrison said he saw Maloney throw a punch at Brian Glennie seconds after the Toronto player body checked a Detroit player.

He said that when Glennie slumped to the ice, Maloney attempted to hit him again, then appeared to pick him up and drop him on the ice two times.

"I don't really think he used that much force," Morrison said.

Under cross examination by Maloney's lawyer, the head referee agreed some players look on accumulated penalties as "almost a badge of honor" but said Maloney never has been known to use his stick against an opponent.

He said when Maloney tried to pick up Glennie from the ice, it appeared Maloney wanted to continue the fight.

During the game, seven major penalties were handed out for fights. Morrison described the game as "not unusually rough."

On re-examination by Crown Attorney Robert McGee, he testified that as far as NHL rules were concerned, the incident between the two players was a fist-fight. Maloney was given a five-minute penalty.

Leonard "Red" Kelley, coach of the Maple Leafs and a 28-year NHL veteran, said just before the fight Glennie lifted Detroit's Brian Hextall into the air with a check.

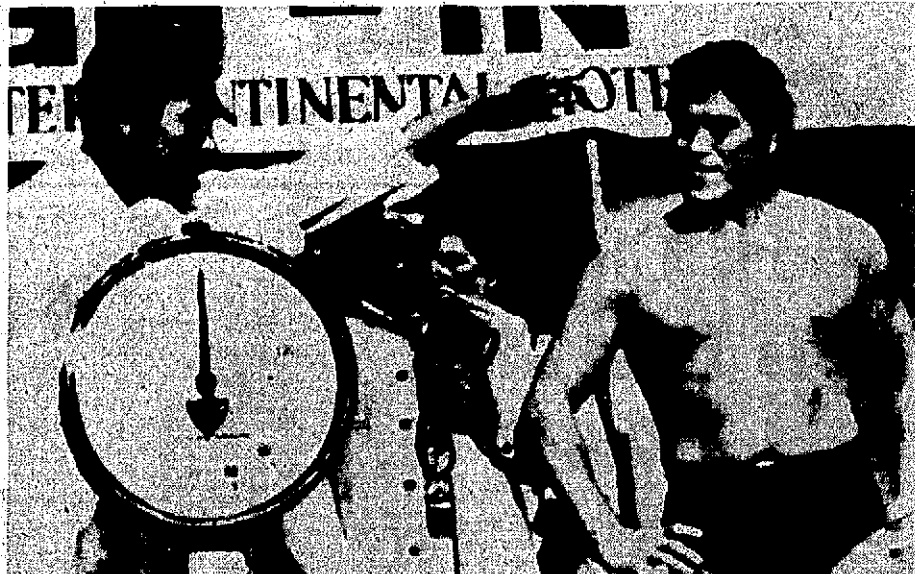

Glennie, dazed when he left the ice, spent a night in a hospital. He suffered from a sore shoulder, a small cut and a mild to moderate concussion.

Kelly described Maloney as a "tough, courageous hockey player" but agreed with Morrison he had never been known to use his stick.

During the first day of the trial, Glennie said he accepted fights as part of the game.

The trial, before Judge Patrick LeSage, continues.

PREFIGHT JAB: World heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali playfully jabs at Japanese wrestler Antonio Inoki during their weigh-in Friday in Tokyo for Saturday's "World Martial Arts Championship" match. Ali weighed in at 218 1/4 pounds and Inoki came in at 221 1/4 pounds. (AP Wirephoto)

Spectacle At Weigh-In

Ali Jabs, Inoki Showy Before Match

TOKYO (AP) — After standing impressively in front of boxer Muhammad Ali's threatening jabs, wrestler Antonio Inoki shed his splendid robe, with its gold sun over Japan's symbolic Mt. Fuji, and beckoned.

With that showy gesture after their weigh-in Friday, Inoki joined in the mood of spectacle for their "World Martial Arts Championship" Saturday in which he is supposed to wrestle, Ali is supposed to box, and such actual martial arts as karate are mostly banned.

So far, Inoki had reacted to Ali by sitting with arms folded and putting on his most inscrutable face, as he did when Ali came in for the weigh-in shouting "Inoki, Inoki..."

Except for muttering "ano baka" — "that idiot" — he left all the talking to the world heavyweight boxing champion.

And Ali brought howls of delight from Japanese newsmen when he went off shouting "mata ashita" — "I'll see you tomorrow." Ali didn't really follow through on his "sayonara," however. He circled back to block Inoki's exit, and that's when Inoki beckoned and Ali's handlers finally dragged Ali away as the boxer screamed, "Let me at him."

Inoki, whose main credentials are that he is president of New Japan Pro Wrestling Co., weighed in at 221 1/4 pounds. Ali was 218 1/4.

The other formalities of the weigh-in ceremony were declarations by both fighters' doctors that they were in top condition. Dr. Sanzo Satoh said Inoki's recent left shoulder injury had been cured.

Aside from that, it was all posturing, starting with the late arrival of both fighters.

Ali's camp had let it be known the boxer wouldn't appear until Inoki's camp returned signed copies of a winner-take-all agreement. Ali's handlers said that when Ali signed it Wednesday night, he thought it was a publicity stunt and he couldn't turn down a challenge.

But, they said, only Ali's manager had the authority to make such a deal, that Ali deserves his $8 million guarantee because he is the drawing card and Inoki has little to lose, and Ali's Black Muslim religion bans such a gamble as a winner-take-all deal. Inoki was expected to make up to $4 million, depending on fight revenue.

Inoki's camp denounced Ali as a dishonorable man, but said Inoki was willing to let Ali heck down to make sure the fight went on. After the weigh-in, a spokesman for Ali said the papers had been returned.

Inoki arrived 23 minutes late for the weigh-in, and Ali entered five minutes later. Climbing off the scales, he assumed a grappling post with Inoki, but the wrestler threw his arms off with a sudden, violent move.

Both sides have insisted the match is serious. Angelo Dundee, Ali's trainer, declared,

"After he knocks out this guy, you'll see it's not a hoax."

Ali went out in pouring rain at 2 a.m. Friday for his last road-work before the scheduled 15-round fight at 11:30 a.m. Saturday (10:30 p.m., EDT, Friday), Dundee said.

A spokesman for Inoki said the wrestler "wanted to be left entirely alone. This is the day before the biggest fight of his career and he wants to rest physically and mentally."

Orr Signs Huge Pact With Hawks

CHICAGO (AP) — Millionaire superstar Bobby Orr has put his signature on a $3 million contract with the Chicago Black Hawks.

Although "Show Biz" isn't exactly his style, the former Bruins defenseman signed his new contract Thursday with the Hawks at a news conference open to the public and on the stage of a former movie house.

Some 1,000 persons watched as television cameras whirled and Orr signed a contract which will pay him $100,000 a year for the next 30 years.

"This is what my new bosses wanted and I was happy to do it," Orr said. "I'm glad it's over. Now I'm anxious to get started and play for them."

Mayor Richard J. Daley, Black Hawk president Billy Wirtz, General Manager Tommy Ivan and Coach Billy Reay all beamed and lauded Orr as the greatest hockey player ever.

"June 24 will be a memorable day in Chicago sports history," said Wirtz. "This makes it a triple header for Tommy Ivan."

He first signed Gordie Howe with Detroit, then Bobby Hull with the Black Hawks and now Bobby Orr.

The mention of the name of Bobby Hull drew a loud cheer from the crowd. The Black Hawks refused to negotiate with Hull when he jumped to the World Hockey Association for $1 million.

Reay called it the "highlight of my career. Now all I'm looking for is 120 plus points next season."

Orr then received a standing ovation.

"I had a speech written," he said, reaching into his pocket. "But I'm going to throw it away. Thank you for coming here. I'm nervous. It was a very tough decision to make. It wasn't made overnight but I know it's the right decision. I'm looking forward to coming here and to make my home here."

"I'm excited. I wish training camp were starting tomorrow. I think we've got a good hockey club and if everybody gives 100 per cent, we'll have a winning club," he added.

Detroit Upheld On Porno Rules

By W. DALE NELSON
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Supreme Court decision allowing cities to use zoning laws to restrict topless bars, adult bookstores, movie theaters and dance halls could help stop the growth of "sex strips," a prosecutor predicts.

The prosecutor, Assistant City Atty. Maureen Reilly of Detroit, said "clusters of this sort of business draw prostitutes and dope like magnets."

She was the successful lawyer in the Supreme Court's 5 to 4 ruling Thursday that cities may use their zoning power to place greater restrictions on establishments that feature sexually explicit fare than on those which don't. One justice referred to the ordinance as an example of "innovative land use regulation."

The ruling upheld a Detroit ordinance which added pornography parlors to a list of businesses such as pool halls and pawn shops whose location was restricted under a measure designed to discourage development of "skid row" areas.

No business on the list is allowed to locate within 1,000 feet of any other business of one of the types listed or within 500 feet of a residential neighborhood. The ordinance was challenged by two operators of so-called "adult" theaters.

Prosecutor Reilly said the decision may have a greater impact in areas outside Detroit because similar ordinances could give those areas "the tool to confront problems Detroit is already confronted with."

The majority opinion was written by Justice John Paul Stevens and agreed to by Chief Justice Warren E. Burger and Justices Byron R. White and William H. Rehnquist.

Justice Lewis Powell voted to uphold the Detroit law, saying there was no indication that it had suppressed production of adult movies or significantly restricted access to them.

Dissenting Justices Potter Stewart, William J. Brennan Jr., Thurgood Marshall and

Harry A. Blackmun said the majority decision "rides roughshod over cardinal principles of First Amendment law."

In other decisions, the court: —Struck down federal wage and hour standards for state and local government workers. The court ruled 5 to 4 that the extension of the federal pay standards was beyond "the power of Congress to override state sovereignty" with the aim of regulating interstate commerce.

—Ruled 7 to 2 that police need not have a warrant to enter a private home to arrest a suspect who has been spotted beforehand in a doorway in public view.

—Ruled 7 to 2 that the duty of a prosecutor to disclose information to a defendant does not cover every bit of evidence the defense attorney might find useful but rather covers evidence that would raise a reasonable doubt about guilt.

—Upheld a Maryland law that pays a bounty for recycling automobile hulks and gives a preference to processors within the state.

—Voted 8 to 0 in ruling that federal housing authorities do not have to make an environmental impact study of resort and housing developments which the government is checking for compliance with a federal disclosure law.

WE'RE PRISONERS, CITIZENS SAY

Wildlife Refuge Isolates Town

COROLLA, N.C. (AP) — The 43 families who live here angrily denounce the federal government, saying it has made them prisoners in their own homes.

Corolla is 28 miles south of Virginia Beach, Va., and part of North Carolina's Outer Banks. The residents attend church, shop, go to the dentist and doctor and socialize in Virginia Beach. Some of them work there as well.

But, to get to Virginia Beach, Corolla residents must go through Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge, a 4.2-mile stretch of desolate beach the government has set aside to protect shorebirds, waterfowl, loggerhead turtles, ghost crabs, and other species.

The only other route available to Corolla residents is south around Currituck Sound, a 100-mile trip, four times longer than going through the refuge.

"It'll come to bloodshed," predicted Ernie Bowden, a Corolla citizen who was fined two weeks ago for "stealing government property" after he collected driftwood and garbage on the refuge.

It'll get worse for local residents as the government plans to close access to the refuge on Dec. 31, 1979.

Corolla residents must drive on the beach to go through the refuge as only 1.2 miles is paved. There lies the rub. The government says the number of persons crossing the refuge jumped from 10,000 in 1961 to 348,000 by 1971 and action was taken to halt "environmental degradation" blamed on vehicles.

Access was first limited in 1973 when the U.S. Department of the Interior said the refuge would be open only from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. But, on June 3, that was cut to 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. and 5 p.m. to 8 p.m., allowing one trip a day for Corolla citizens.

Villagers have begged for help from Congress and state officials, but to no avail.

There are other aspects of the new rules the residents despise.

Under the first set of rules, access was allowed for permanent residents of Corolla as of Jan. 12, 1972. Under the June 3 rules, however, access has been restricted to those who owned their homes as of Oct. 6, 1975.

Among those eliminated by the new access and ownership rules are:

—Danny Carlin, a U.S. mailman in Portsmouth, Va. He must stay in a Portsmouth hotel during the week because the refuge is not open early enough for him to get to work on time if he stayed at home.

—Charlie Robinson, a part-time fisherman whose home was condemned last winter. He moved to a new home 30 feet away but he doesn't qualify for access because he was not living in his new home last Oct.

—Lanky Griggs O'Neal, a Currituck County sheriff's deputy, who was born and reared here. He can cross the refuge only on official business because he doesn't own his home.

Interior Department officials say that until recently they were not aware of the hardships the regulations have caused. But they say, "There's nothing we can do anyway."

State Crime Victim Bill Advances

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state would pay some Michigan crime victims for their financial and physical pains under legislation passed by the House and sent to the Senate.

Supporters of the measure, approved 80-18 Thursday, say it will help victims of street crime. It would be in effect for crimes committed after Oct. 1, 1977.

A last-minute attempt to make beaten wives and others who are victims of crimes committed by the person with whom they live eligible for maximum compensation failed.

The Senate originally passed the bill, but it must return there for concurrence in amendments.

Under one amendment, judges can include in sentences a method by which criminals will pay back money the state pays to victims.

Some legislative analysts estimate the bill will cost the state more than $1.7 million, although others say there is no way to compute the cost in advance.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Patrick McCollough, D-Deerborn, partially makes up medical costs or losses in wages by aiding injured victims or their relatives who face serious financial difficulties. The program would be eligible for 50 per cent federal funding.

SAD HOMECOMING: Leo Anderson, 51, who was shot and whose wife was killed in a car at a flooded viaduct on Chicago's South Side on June 13, is welcomed at his suburban Buffalo Grove, Ill., home by three of his six children. Mike, 13, left, and Janet, 15, center, were in the car during the shooting. At right is another daughter, Kate. (AP Wirephoto).

Senator Appeals Suspension

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Sen. Hal W. Ziegler, R-Jackson, said Thursday he has appealed a 90-day suspension of his law license to the state Supreme Court. The suspension by the state Bar of Michigan was based on charges Ziegler neglected the claim of an insurance company which had retained him as an attorney. The matter originally was forwarded to Ziegler in 1968 and by 1974 it had not been concluded, said Richard H. Senter, bar grievance administrator. Ziegler earlier lost an appeal of his suspension to the bar grievance board. He says he does not feel the 90-day penalty was fair.

MSU GRAD: Deborah Doullick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Doullick, 684 East Glenford, St. Joseph, graduated with a bachelor of science degree, school of nursing, from Michigan State university June 12. She is a member of Sigma Theta Tau honor society and will be working in a Denver, Colo., hospital.

It isn't often that one walks into an ambush with quite the self-assurance that Doris Kearns displayed in writing "Lyndon Johnson and the America Dream." According to Kearns' story, she was chosen as a White House Fellow shortly before an article she coauthored, "How to Remove L.B.J. in 1968," was to appear in the "New Republic." On May 7, 1967, her narrative runs, she went to the White House for the ceremony and a dinner dance at which the President expressed great interest in her and whispered loudly that he wanted no one but Kearns to work in the White House. Then, she continues, her article appeared on May 13 and she was exiled to the Labor Department. Only a year later did she return to the White House and then on to Texas with L.B.J. to work on his memoirs and be his surrogate daughter and lay therapist.

I have expressed my overall view of this dull book elsewhere ("The New Leader," 5-24-76): In a nutshell, I am convinced Kearns was Johnson's final recipient of his famous "treatment." The President always needed an "ear," a reliable friend to whom he could express in confidence his often mind-boggling prejudices about his contemporaries.

Kearns assumed this role in Texas, and Johnson, I figure, quickly realized she was "into" psychobiography. Dreams are the stuff psychobiographies are made of, so L.B.J. began to produce truly Texan dreams. By Sam Houston, nobody was going to outdream him! Analyst Kearns was there with her little notebook — at his 5:15 a.m. therapy sessions; her bed was his couch, and she would sit, fully dressed, recording his latest nightmares.

So much for the tedious dreamworld of Doris Kearns. Let us return to the first act when the President, at the dinner-dance welcoming ceremony, kidded her about Harvard, waltzed her around merrily, and then in one of his classic whispers (designed to be heard in Georgetown) announced he wanted her to serve in the White House. She tells how tormented she was by the fact he knew nothing of the upcoming "New Republic" article and wondered if she should stay in the Fellows program. Finally, after the dust had settled from the article, Larry O'Brien called and told her all was forgiven.

Ex-BH Man Rises In Federal Agency

Ernest Gustafson Jr., 37, formerly of Benton Harbor, has been promoted to deputy district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service in Phoenix, Ariz. Gustafson was with the San Pedro, Calif., office of the service, before receiving the promotion to Phoenix. While in California he also was deputy coordinator for immigration processing of Vietnamese refugees at Camp Pendleton.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gustafson Sr., 514 Edgemoor avenue, Benton Harbor, Gustafson was employed at the Benton Harbor post office before joining the Border Patrol of the Immigration Service in 1962 when he was assigned to the Mexican border.

Gustafson and his wife, the former Shirley Baranwell, of Benton Harbor, are the parents of two children.

The Immigration Service is a division of the U.S. Department of Justice. Gustafson's mother said he credits the Spanish he learned at Benton Harbor high school under the teaching of Miss Patricia Spangenberg and public speaking under Miss Margaret Meyn as a big help in his career with the Immigration Service.

Engineers' Next Target For Michigan Rhubarb Is Mechanical Harvester

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

harvester similar to those used to harvest celery and carrots worked well this week during tests in Southwestern Michigan. United States Department of Agriculture

Researcher Dale Marshall said.

The bright orange prototype was "very successful" harvesting rhubarb grown on muck soil in the Decatur area, Marshall reported.

The prototype was built this year at USDA's East Lansing Agricultural Research Service station, according to Marshall.
Helping in pay for the vehicle was the Michigan Frozen Food Packers, a trade association that earlier expressed interest in the project.

The self-propelled machine uses a fork-type frame and circular cutting discs to cut the rhubarb stalks about an inch above ground, he explained.

The fork moves along the row, gathering the rhubarb and holding it for the two 36-inch metal discs, which rotate toward each other and shear the product. Once cut, the rhubarb is carried by conveyor belts to the top of the machine, where the leaves are cut off mechanically.

Marshall said the fork frame and belt pickup is borrowed from an obsolete sugar beet harvester.

Harvester manufacturers were on hand to watch the prototype, Marshall said.
Manufacturers will have to decide whether the machine is more efficient than traditional hand-picking.

Only a few states are involved in rhubarb production, according to an unofficial survey taken by Marshall.
Michigan's industry involves about 200 acres. In total, the United States and Canada devote about 1,600 acres to a rhubarb industry that returns about $2 million, he added.

RHUBARB HARVESTER: Front-end of prototype rhubarb picker shows flared frame which catches and aligns stalks for cutters. Belts inside frame then carry the sheared stalks up the machine. Packers, Growers Agree On Size Of Apple Crop

Michigan processors and growers seem to agree on at least one thing: the apple crop this year will be from 12 to 12.6 million bushels.

At a recent meeting of the American Agricultural Marketing Association, members of the Michigan Processing Apple Growers estimated the Michigan crop at 12 million bushels.

Last week at the annual "crop guessimate," the Michigan Frozen Food Packers pegged Michigan production at 12.6 million bushels.

Meeting in Winchester, Va., members of the American Agricultural Marketing Association heard that processing varieties of apples seem to be light in most Eastern states.
The size of several state crops were estimated:

Pennsylvania — 7 million

bushels.
West Virginia — 3 million bushels, about 50 per cent of a normal crop. Fruit finish on some varieties is poor.

Virginia — 2 to 3 million bushels, compared to an average 10 million bushel crop.
The area south of Winchester expects a very light crop.

Maryland — 450,000 bushels, about 30 per cent of the normal crop.

North Carolina — 7 million bushels of good-sized, clean apples predicted.

Western New York — 10.5 million bushels, about 70 per cent of a normal crop.

Corn Third Of State's Farm Crops

About one-third of Michigan's planted crop acreage is used in growing corn, according to B. Dale Hall, director of the Michigan Department of Agriculture.

"In 1975, this amounted to 2.3 million acres for a production value of $430 million," Hall said.
He added that about two-thirds of the corn produced in Michigan is marketed as a cash crop. Most of the remainder is used on the farm for feed.

Michigan ranked ninth among the states in field corn production last year.

NEW START

BAINBRIDGE, Ga. (AP) —
At 70, Jack Davis started a new business at his farm near Lake Seminoe. Davis, who has been in a sawmill business for 53 years, claims his new venture is turning out the best quality corn meal anywhere around. "I got started in it because I wanted something to do — something to pacify my mind," he says. He still helps his son at the family-owned sawmill and grows and processes his own corn.

USDA Predicts A 521,000 Bushel State Peach Crop

The United States Department of Agriculture is predicting that the 1976 Michigan peach crop will be 521,000 bushels, less than one-half of the 1,148,000 bushels harvested last year, according to the Michigan Crop Reporting Service.

Just last week the Michigan Frozen Food Packers "guess-timated" that the state peach crop would be 937,500 bushels.

The crop reporting service stated "repeated frosts in April and May plus poor pollination conditions are the major complaints for a poor crop this year."

Michigan's 1974 peach crop was 1,458,000 bushels, the service noted.

Nationwide, USDA predicts that the peach crop will be 13 per cent larger than last year. A 1975 crop of 31 million bushels is pegged, compared to last year's crop of 28.7 million bushels and the 1974 crop of 28.7 million bushels.

The crop reporting service, on June 1, also predicted that the 1976 Michigan strawberry harvest will total 145,000 hundred-weight. The figure is 12 per cent below the 1975 harvest and 18 per cent lower than the 1974 crop total. Acreage for harvest continues to decline at about 100 acres per year. Acreage currently is about 2,900.

Washington Known For Raising Superior Mules

Besides lending a tinted and ill-equipped army during the Revolutionary War, George Washington had other concerns. At heart he was a farmer and often his thoughts drifted back to Mt.
Vernon.

During his seven-year absence his farming operation there fell into the same disarray that often described his army.

When he left, his flock of 1,000 sheep produced an average of five pounds of wool per fleece. By the time he returned, wool production had dropped to two and one-half pounds per head.

Another concern of Washington was providing the muscle to improve agriculture. Mechanized agriculture was still a long time in coming. But Washington saw the need for better draft animals to free farmers from more manual tasks.

On his first retirement in 1783, Washington termed must horses defective for farm work and set about raising mules for agriculture. Word of his efforts spread.

Soon, he had a jack and two jennies as gifts from the King of Spain and others from the Marquis de Lafayette from the island of Malta.

Washington began to cross breed with the best of his coach mares. In a few years, Mt. Vernon was renowned for its superior mules, 16 hands high, of great power and endurance.

A span of four Washington mules brought up to $800.

Bean Tax Changes Proposed

The Michigan Bean Commission could broaden its promotional programs and make its assessment mandatory under a bill recently introduced in the Michigan Legislature.

Under the bill, any farmer
"who grows beans for market" would have to pay the regular grower assessment. That assessment, which has always been three cents per hundred-weight, would be increased to five cents per hundredweight under the bill.

Growers now can be either "participating" or "non-participating." Since the commission was formed in 1965, from 88 to 92 per cent of the growers in the state have been "participating" and paid the tax.

With more money collected in assessments, the commission says it could play a vital role in carrying out market development and promotion programs that the bean industry needs.

In Place Of Fruit

Tree Cankers Will Be Abundant

Cankers on fruit trees seem to be very abundant this year, and chances are the weather this past winter had something to do with the outbreak.

Michigan State University Plant Pathologist Frank Laemmlein points out that in addition to extreme fluctuations in temperature during the winter, Michigan experienced ice storms and a tippy-turvy spring, with temperatures going from 80 degrees to freezing in the same day.

Rapid changes in temperature put a tree under stress, Laemmlein says, and ice breaks branches and limbs. Both stress and breakage weaken a tree, making it susceptible to invasion by disease organisms.

"Many of the fungi that cause cankers are always present on trees," he said. "It is only when a tree is injured or weakened in some way that they can establish themselves."

Cankers usually become evident in the spring when new growth begins. The affected tissue doesn't grow but forms a slightly sunken area that may range in color from reddish to dark brown or gray brown. In time the fungus usually produces some kind of fruiting structures that appear in the canker as eruptions or lesions.

Laemmlein advises pruning to remove cankers and eliminate the infecting organism. When the canker occurs on a main branch or on the trunk of the tree, it must be removed surgically and the wound properly treated. Unless you do it yourself, this can be an expensive operation.

"The danger in do-it-yourself tree surgery is that you can very easily contaminate your tools with the disease-causing fungus and spread it into the healthy wood," Laemmlein warns. "To guard against this, you should disinfect tools frequently with a dip in a 10 per cent solution of liquid chlorine bleach. Rubbing alcohol may also be used and then flamed off."

Branches that were split or broken by ice or wind should be pruned neatly so that the wound is smooth. This will minimize the amount of wood exposed to invasion.

"If you use a wound dressing, be sure to choose one that contains a fungicide," he advises.

Foreign 'Super Pigs' Awaited

Within the next three or four years, swine producers in the United States may have previously - unavailable genes of foreign "super pigs" in their herds.

The potential for new leaps in genetic improvement comes about from a new invention and the hope that the current ban on imported frozen swine semen will be lifted.

This February the Michigan
State University Endocrine Research unit began working on a problem. The unit wanted to reduce the amount of semen needed to achieve swine progenies by artificial insemination.

Researchers took a laparoscope — a pencil-sized fiberoptic telescope that allows the operator to examine internal organs without major surgery — and perfected a technique for inserting a very fine needle into the upper opening of the oviduct and injecting three-tenths of a milliliter of semen.

"Out of seven attempts with the new technique, we achieved two pregnancies," said Dr.
W.R. Dukelow, director of the Endocrine Research unit. "By obtaining pregnancies with a very small volume of semen, 100 to 300 sows could be bred with the same amount of frozen semen now required for a single insemination using standard vaginal artificial insemination techniques."

"The impact of the new procedure should be felt in the international business of importing and exporting frozen swine semen because shipping frozen semen in large amounts now needed is difficult and expensive," he said.

The United States is a major exporter of frozen semen, but imports are banned due to the possibility of introducing foot and mouth infections. A semen screening procedure is being developed, and the ban is expected to be lifted around 1978.

With the import ban lifted, the new technique would allow the rapid spread of superior genetic traits from foreign "super sows," and exotic breeds throughout the U.S. swine population.

SEEK $25,000 EACH

Boys Name Police, Market In Lawsuit

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A suit has been filed in Berrien Circuit court by relatives of two Benton township youths who seek $25,000 for each of the youths from a township supermarket and the township police department.

The youths are Henry Hill, 11, and Henry Pollard Jr., both of 2452 Lawrence drive. Their counsel, Atty. Yvonne Hughes, said she did not know Pollard's age.

Cited as defendants are Jerry and Ken Lomonaco, owners of Lomonaco's supermarket, at 2548 Territorial road, "John Does, Benton township police officers," and Benton township and its police department.

The suit claims that on March 29 the Lomonacos accused the two boys of being involved in a larceny from the store, and police were summoned and Hill was arrested. The suit charges Hill, "was detained in a dark, small, musty room for about one hour until he was released to his grandmother for lack of evidence or probable cause."

The suit claims "no formal charges" were filed against him, and that he was "subjected to great humiliation and mental suffering and has become nervous and apprehensive and has sought psychological and psychiatric counseling."

The part of the suit dealing with Pollard claims the Lomonacos forced Pollard back to an office and "did bodily and forcibly hurt Pollard against the desk." The suit claims, that caused Pollard "great anxiety and pain of body and mind for a long time."

A report at the Benton township police department says a boy was picked up at Lomonaco's for shoplifting after one of the Lomonacos observed him attempting to leave the store with a jar of VapoRub under his sweater.

Det. David Parsons, youth officer at the township police department, said Hill was held in the holding cell until an adult came to pick him up, and that all juveniles accused of shoplifting are released to parents or guardians by police. He also noted Hill never went to court on the charge because the boy was referred to the Youth Services Bureau, an agency designed to help young offenders.

He also noted no report of any assault was filed by Pollard.

evolved in the makeup of the Democratic leadership of Michigan's state legislature. It seems that one legislator, Sen. Mack, has engineered himself into such an insulated and powerful position that he can dictate the course of legislation for the state.

One flagrant exposition of this is the progress of two recent bills that have been proposed concerning our environment. Last year, an important piece of legislation, the Sand Dune Mining bill — a bill to protect this most valuable natural resource, was passed in the house by a convincing vote of 97 to 6. Senate Majority Leader Williams Fitzgerald had originally sent the bill to the Senate State Affairs committee but later redirected it to the Conservation committee at the request of Sen. Mack, who happens to be chairman of the Conservation committee. This was done with the promise by Sen. Mack that the bill would be reported out of committee no later than the end of 1975. Nothing has been done to date.

On the other hand, in a matter of days, the Mack Land Sales bill — a bill to allow state lands to be sold for industrial expansion — was bulldozed through the House Conservation committee which is chaired by Tom Anderson, an alleged environmentally-minded representative.

Perhaps someday in the not-too-distant future, we will have leadership in our legislature that answers to the desires of the people and not the whims and interests of a lone individual.

Thirteen Escape Injuries In Collision Of Car, Van

FENNIVILLE — Thirteen people, including four children and seven handicapped adults, escaped without serious injuries in a car-van collision near here yesterday that left both vehicles demolished.

Allagan sheriff's deputies said it was a near miracle that no one was seriously hurt in the 3:20 p.m. collision between a car carrying four children and a van loaded with seven mentally and physically handicapped adults coming home from their jobs at the Precious Acres Workshop.

Deputies said the van was coming to a stop during heavy rain on 113th avenue to drop off a passenger when it was struck in the rear by the car. The van flipped over on its roof and the car had its engine shoved back into the front seat, but no one was injured seriously enough to be hospitalized, deputies said.

All were treated and released from Allagan General hospital, officers said.

The driver of the car, identified as Allen R. Brown, 19, of Malvern, Ark., told officers he slammed on his brakes when he saw the van's brake lights go on, but it was too late. He was not ticketed, officers said.

The van driver, Lewis Worster, 60, of Allagan, told officers he was attempting to turn into a driveway on 113th avenue about a quarter mile south of 56th street in Allagan county's Clyde township.

The children in the car were identified as Elena Rios, 11, of Holland; Kim Black, 4, route 3, Fennville; Robin Martin, 13, route 1, Pullman; and Charles Martin, 16, route 1, Pullman.

Southfield Judges Disqualify Selves In Prostitution Case

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. (AP) — The three Southfield District Court judges disqualified themselves Thursday from hearing a prostitution case against a woman who has said she was paid by some public officials to have sex with them.

Norman Feder, chief judge of the court, said he was withdrawing the bench with the concurrence of his two fellow judges, S. James Clarkson and Clarence Ruld Jr.

Feder said published allegations about the case made it impossible for the court to hear Lais Herman's case without the court being criticized by the public.

Mrs. Herman, 33, was arrested April 15 in Southfield and charged with procuring an act of gross indecency between a male and a female, keeping a house of ill fame and accepting the earnings of a prostitute.

When she was arrested, she had in her possession a shoebox which reportedly contains coded information showing that public officials were among her clients.

Feder said the court action Thursday means Mrs. Her-man's preliminary examination on the charges will be delayed at least a week until the state court administrator's office can arrange for a visiting judge to hear the case.

L. Brooks Patterson, Oakland County prosecutor, has said police are investigating allegations from Mrs. Herman that there were attempts to fix and abstract justice in the case and that she had a sexual relationship with one or more of the Southfield judges.

Woman Accused In Stabbing

BANGOR — Carolyn Lacy, 26, of 209 Union street, Bangor, was to be arraigned today in Seventh District court in South Haven on a charge of assault with intent to commit murder in connection with the stabbing of a man.

The man, Johnny Jordan, 24, was listed in serious condition today at Mercy hospital, Benton Harbor, suffering a stab wound in the chest.

He had been taken to South Haven Community hospital shortly before 7 p.m. last night and later transferred to Mercy where he underwent surgery to correct internal bleeding.

Bangor Police Chief Claude Robertson said the alleged stabbing occurred at the woman's residence at 6:45 p.m. Several knives and a quantity of alleged drugs and liquor were seized as evidence, Robertson said.

Jordan was reported to be home on furlough from the Army. Robertson said an infant child of the woman was to be petitioned to probate court today for placement in a foster home.

Senate Approves Freeze On Welfare Payments

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Welfare payments would be frozen at their present levels for one year under a bill passed Thursday in the Michigan Senate. The bill is the first appropriations measure in several years to provide no immediate increase in payments for Aid to Dependent Children (ADC) recipients.

Under the measure, which now returns in the House en route to a conference committee, recipients would not get a 4 per cent increase until July 1, 1977. The House had voted for a 4 per cent increase beginning Oct. 1, when the new fiscal year begins. The bill, which attracted almost no debate, also drops a House provision banning payment for abortions for welfare recipients. The House and Senate got into a battle over the issue last year, and the attorney general ruled the provision unconstitutional.

The $1.189 billion bill was approved on a vote of 24-3. It is one of the rare budget bills which is below Gov. William Milliken's recommendation — which in this case was $1.192 billion. Current spending is about $1.016 billion.

The bill is based on an anticipated welfare caseload of 221,200 persons, compared to the current rolls of 205,200. The Senate also approved, 21-9, and returned to the House a Social Services appropriation bill for the three months ending Sept. 30. The bill contains $287 million, about $5 million over the governor's recommendation.

Three other budget bills for a recently extended fiscal year also were approved and returned to the House to be sent to conference committees. They included a $13 million bill for various state grants, a $1.1 million appropriation for the Department of Agriculture and a $6.6 million bill for the Department of Natural Resources.

'No Secret Sessions' Bill Breezes Through House

By MARY STEVENSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A bill virtually banning secret meetings by public bodies won a resounding House victory Thursday.

A key supporter attributed the victory to a desire by lawmakers to look good to the voters this fall.

"Now they've got something they can run on," Rep. David Hollister, D-Lansing, said after the House approved the controversial measure 97-6. It would take effect Jan. 1 if it becomes law.

Hollister originally had predicted a tough fight for the measure. But it withstood repeated attempts to gut it with loopholes, emerging from the Senate intact.

"I think part of it is Watergate, people want to re-establish their credibility, they want to have something to show," Hollister added.

He noted that the state Supreme Court recently overturned a 1975 campaign ethics act and said the open meetings bill is better than nothing to prove to voters the legislature wants honest government.

The House-passed bill lightens a version originally passed by the Senate. Sen. David Plawewski, D-DeARBorn Heights, sponsor, said he supports the House version and will work for Senate approval.

Unlike current law, the bill requires open meetings for all phases of the body's operation, not just when official actions are taken.

It also applies for the first time to the Democratic and Republican caucuses in the Senate and the House — when certain attendance figures are met — and contains penalty provisions.

The House version allows public bodies to hold closed sessions only:

—To consider the dismissal, suspension or disciplining of a public officer or employee, and only when a closed hearing is requested.

—To consider the dismissal, suspension or disciplining of a student when the student or his family requests a closed hearing.

—To conduct strategy sessions connected with collective bargaining negotiations.

—To discuss the purchase or leasing of property before a definite price or agreement has been reached.

—To discuss pending litigation with attorneys.

—To discuss material legally exempt from disclosure.

The bill exempts the following boards from the open meeting requirements only when they are deliberating the merits of a case:

—Arbitration panels, including those appointed by the employment relations commission to settle labor disputes.

—The Teacher Tenure Commission, when it is reviewing the decision of a school board.

—The employment security appeals board.

—The worker's compensation appeals board.

The Senate-passed version allowed closed meetings for a variety of reasons, including informational sessions and discussions on hiring.

The bill says public bodies cannot hold meetings unless they give notice. Closed sessions could not be held without a two-thirds roll call vote, and an explanation in the minutes of why the closed session is needed.

LBJ Knew, TV Newsman Says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television commentator Howard K. Smith says President Lyndon B. Johnson once told him that President John F. Kennedy "was trying to get to Castro, but Castro got to him first."

Smith, on the "ABC Evening News" Thursday night, said he was relating the conversation because "enough doubt has been cast on the Warren report on John Kennedy's death to justify a new investigation that will leave no lead unfollowed."

Theft Of 9 CB Radios Reported

HARTFORD — Nine citizen band radios valued at $1,415 were reported stolen early Thursday morning from separate vehicles parked on the south side of Hartford, according to Lee Spencer, city police chief.

Spencer said the vehicles were broken into between 2 and 6 a.m. He said six CBs were taken from vehicles parked in the Beechwood Trails mobile home park, two from vehicles parked on South Maple street and one from a vehicle parked on Oak street.

He said it appears the same person or people were involved in the thefts. No arrests have been made in connection with the thefts. He said most of the vehicles were entered by first prying open the vent window.

FREE ON BOND

NEW YORK (AP) — New Jersey Teamster official Anthony "Tony Pro" Provenzano, accused of conspiring to kidnap and murder another union official in 1961, has been freed from jail here after posting $100,000 bond.

Blood Test May Detect M.S. Early

NEW YORK (AP) — Early detection of the nerve disease multiple sclerosis, which affects about 500,000 Americans, may be possible through a new blood test, Duke University researchers report.

There has been no fully reliable or easy test to tell if a person has multiple sclerosis — M.S. — or some other disease because of the variety of M.S. symptoms and the fact that other diseases have some of the same symptoms.

The researchers said the blood test — which takes only four hours — can distinguish between M.S. and some other neurological diseases, and can indicate M.S. regardless of the severity, duration and activity of the disease. The report by Dr. Nelson L. Levy, Paul S. Auerbach and Dr. Edward C. Hayes of the division of Immunology, Duke University Medical Center, appears in the current June 24 issue of the New England Journal of Medicine.

However, Dr. Martin S. Hirsch, of Massachusetts General Hospital said in an accompanying editorial that "several reservations must be kept in mind before the authors' conclusions are accepted too readily."

One is a need for testing a wider range of patients free of M.S. but suffering from other conditions, including viral diseases and disorders of the immune system, he said.

M.S. is a chronic debilitating disease for which there is no cure, nor is its cause known. It is marked by patchy destruction of the insulating sheath, myelin, around nerves. That causes a kind of short-circuiting that can bring on weakness, tremor, stiffness, vision troubles, difficulty with bladder control, and other symptoms. It follows an up and down course with remissions or improvement followed by new attacks.

A practical test that identified M.S. early — and the new test appears capable of that — could help in treatment. Patients could be advised early to avoid influences, like heat, fatigue, and emotional stress, that are linked with renewed spells of the disease.

The research by Levy and associates is supported in part by the National Multiple Sclerosis Society.

Keep Delivery Room Voices Low

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Doctors don't intend to be "purposefully violent" when they deliver babies, an obstetrician says. But they should turn down the lights and whisper when overseeing births.

Prominent French physician Frederick Loboyer showed reporters on Wednesday a film of a Loboyer-style birth, in which the baby is cussed, not slugged.

Bright lights, loud noises and being held upside down only add to a baby's confusion and terror, he said.

"I never wanted to say doctors are purposefully violent. It's simply we fail to see here is a sensitive human being that is terrified" immediately after birth, Loboyer said.

The 57-year-old author of "Birth Without Violence" said babies born by his method are more serene and less aggressive in their early years.

A recent study, soon to be published in English, also showed Loboyer babies have fewer health problems and are very assertive and full of life, he added.

Alcoholism Could Happen To Anyone, Psychologist Says

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP) — A psychologist says alcoholism could happen to anybody and she doubts that there is such a thing as a "pre-alcoholic personality."

Dr. Joan Curlee-Salisbury of the Veterans Administration Hospital told the annual Midwest Institute of Alcohol Studies that studies which claim to have discovered such a personality use information gathered after the alcoholic has fallen victim to the disease.

The Evanston meeting at Northwestern University is the 22nd annual conference of the institute, held to train professional workers who deal with alcoholics and bring others up to date in the field.

Dr. Curlee-Salisbury said alcoholics may start drinking at adolescence to overcome such normal problems as shyness, and continue to drink.

"He failed to learn problem-solving techniques so next time he has a problem, he drinks again," she explained in a telephone interview Wednesday.

She said she also has found that women tend to become alcoholics at a later age and that the disease progresses more rapidly in them.

The problems women try to overcome tends to be less trivial, such as the departure of children from home, or a husband who must start traveling as part of his job, she said.

No Branch Manager Charges Of Pressure, Austin Claims

By SUSAN AGER Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Secretary of State Richard Austin says he has asked branch managers to let him know if they were "pressured" to contribute to his Senate campaign or the Democratic Party, but none have come forward.

Austin maintained Thursday that political contributions of more than $723,000 since 1971 were purely voluntary, and that branch managers who did not contribute were not fired or otherwise harassed.

The money was collected through a patronage system that Austin says has existed for 30 years. He said he is phasing out the practice, and has cut the number of fee branch managers from more than 250 when he took office in 1971 to about 85.

He said he has not stopped the political contributions, which have put $30,000 into his Senate campaign since April, "because they're voluntary."

The 95 fee-branch managers whom Austin appoints as independent contractors with the state were "invited to make contributions" to my Senate campaign," he said. The Detroit Free Press, however, reported that Walter Elliott, one of Austin's chief assistants, oversees setting quotas for branch managers' contributions and collecting the money every year.

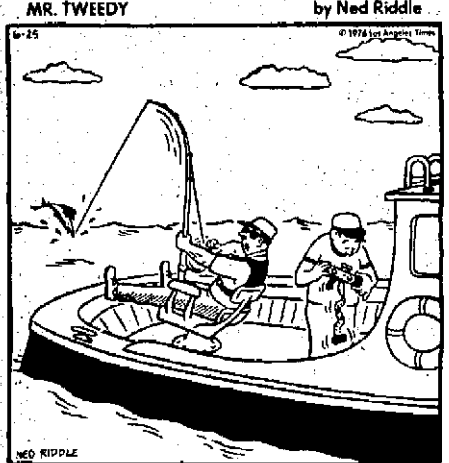

The contributions were made from fees collected from Michigan residents who buy license plates, transfer titles or register boats or off-road vehicles.

"There are managers who have not given and were not put out of office," Austin said. "Under no circumstance has any branch manager been dismissed or in any way mistreated because he failed to make contributions to the Democratic Party or any other campaign fund."

Artists Seeking A Tax Break

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two of the country's highest-priced painters have called for a change in tax laws to make it easier for artists to donate works to museums.

Robert Rauschenberg and James Rosenquist came from New York City to push an amendment now being debated in the Senate.

"CLIMB UP ON THE UPPER DECK AND GET SOME GOOD SHOTS FROM THERE."

Magnet A Medical Miracle?

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — A magnet has been perfected which one day may be used for miniaturizing electric motors, driving heart pumps in humans and holding false teeth in place, says the scientist who developed it.

Karl Stransl, engineering professor at the University of Dayton, said the magnet — 100 times more powerful than those now in use — "has the potential of doing for motors what transistors did for electronics."

His research on rare earth metals produced the new magnet, so powerful it is usable in miniature form.

Medical uses for tiny magnets are being explored. At Boston's Children's Hospital a young cow is living with a pancake-sized miniature motor driving a pump pushing blood through her body. Use in humans is at least three to five years away.
